The Prince Gambles a Little
We Respect Hard Cash
4 Good Names

Current Events

THE VALUE of European monies fell off yesterday. Somebody expects a hitch in that reparations arrangement.

To help Germany rebuild industrially and then pay whatever she must pay would be a wise step for all nations.

To make Germany pay 3 per cent. for money is not financing. It is USURY. And usurers on a big scale usually get what they deserve, they lose.

THE PRINCE OF WALES was unlucky at Deauville, on Sunday night, when he sat at the gambling tables until five in the morning, returning to the house of his host, Herbert Pulitzer, many thousand francs the worse for his experience at baccarat. His little "wads" of ten thousand francs each disappeared rapidly.

You will want to know that he appeared at the gambling house in "a soft pleated dinner shirt with soft cuffs."

JOSEPH PULITZER, father of the young man with whom the Prince of Wales is stopping, was probably an interested spectator, from above. He, with the Duchess of Westminster, and Lord and Lady Mountbatten, could give the Prince solid advice on the foolishness of gambling. The money, which in the Prince's case is "easy come, easy go," is not as important as the fact that even loyal Britons, especially of the "Low Church" type, won't like the idea of supplying cash for those little ten thousand franc "wads."

OTHER NEWS coming from Europe with a description of the Prince of Wales' soft shirt, describes a Hungarian peasant throwing his mother-in-law into the Danube because she ate too much. He explained that he had done his best to make her die a natural death, "chaining her in a dog kennel, feeding her spoiled food, exposing her to the elements."

RUSSIA SENDS word that any citizen over eighteen may change his family name and his first name as often as he pleases, simply by notifying the authorities.

RUSSIA HOLDS the championship for changes. Change of government, two changes of name for St. Petersburg, lightning changes in the divorce court, and now unlimited changes of name.

FRANCE SUGGESTS that as she lost money in accepting the Dawes plan, while is America, the United States should cut down substantially the sum that France owes. Such a proposition might be accepted on a cash basis.

IN THIS COUNTRY we respect enterprises that involve profit. When the prize fighter Firpo came from the Argentine, in the company of a charming young woman, our austere but moral immigration department sent back the young woman but allowed Mr. Firpo to come in. "He had arranged for a fight that will draw at least a million."

THE REVEREND MR. CHASE interested himself in the proposition that it takes two to be immoral, insisting that if there were reasons for sending away the young woman there must have been similar reasons for sending Firpo. Now Firpo is arrested, but his hearing is postponed to September 12, which prevents interference with the million dollar prize fight, set for September 11.

We have shipped mothers with their children out of this country with slight ceremony where there was no charge against them except poverty. It's different when it comes to a million-dollar prize fight.

AN INTERESTING PARTY gathered in the little farmhouse of Mr. Coolidge, Sr., yesterday. It included President Coolidge, his father, Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, Harvey Firestone, the tire maker, and his son.

Dr. Thiery's Letter to "Dearest"

$100,000 GEMS STOLEN IN BOYLSTON ST. HOLD-UP

THIERY'S LETTERS REVEALED

Farewell Note to Forest Hills Girl Denies Killing of David Noble

One of the three farewell notes written by Dr. Raymond D. Thiery just before he attempted suicide in Massachusetts General Hospital was to Miss Emily Priest, whom he addressed as "Dearest."

Miss Priest is understood to live with relatives in Forest Hills. She is kin to Dr. Louis Guy Mead of No. 122 Marlboro street.

It is said by friends of the physician that he and Miss Priest were engaged.

All three farewell notes were made public today, with certain deletions.

All three refer to Thiery's obsession that God had given him liberty to take his life, and all deny that he killed his brother-in-law, David Noble, of whose murder he stands accused.

NOTE TO GIRL.

His note to Miss Priest began "Dearest." It continued:

I do very much more than I can tell but the nervous strain has been too much. Of course I did not murder David. But I am worn out now. God says I may come.

Good-bye. Lovingly,
RAYMOND."

The note is a bit incoherent. The first sentence is missing a word, probably a verb. It is to be assumed, in the circumstances, that he meant to write "love."

The other two notes, written shortly before Dr. Thiery severed an artery in his wrist in Massachusetts General Hospital Monday morning, were to his parents and to Chief of Police Charles A. Kendall of Somerville.

That to his parents read as follows:

Dear Father and Mother:—

I hate to leave you this way. But the strain is too much. I want to assure you, even if this is unnecessary, that I did not murder David.

Please dispose of my things as seems best to you, giving ..... 's pin to her and my medical things, including my microscope, to .....

Please thank all who have been so good to us and give my special love to ..... I have always tried

Hope to Hear Radio Signals from Mars on Aug. 22-23

Washington, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—On the bare chance that radio signals from Mars may be heard during the period when that planet is nearest the earth, Professor Davis Todd, formerly head of the astronomy department at Amherst, has asked that the principal governments of the world agree to keep high-powered radio stations silent during August 22 and 23.

CHURCH PLOT CAUSES KLAN REVOLT

Events moved swiftly and dramatically today in the Ku Klux Klan situation in New England. Outstanding developments were as follows:

1—William C. Moyers, fugitive kleagle of the order, was arrested at his home in New Market, Tenn., charged with directing the despoiling of the Roman Catholic cathedral at Burlington, Vt., and inspiring a plot to pillage or burn all the Catholic churches of Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

2—The Klan in northern New England was reported torn with dissension, thousands of klansmen resigning or preparing to resign in protest against the rule of King Kleagles E. W. Gayer and Paul Blackburn of Rochester, N. H.

3—Rhode Island klansmen were reported divided as a result of the activities of Morris S. Wetherell, an organizer, who is vacationing in Maine.

4—Gordon Ryder, a Klan investigator, was arrested at Burlington, Vt., as a fugitive debtor.

5—Division 10, A. O. H., of Lynn, announces it will form a Sentinel Association, to combat the Klan and protect against police protection for Klan meetings, arguing that they are contrary to the spirit of the Constitution.

Moyers, the runaway kleagle, will fight to the end to avoid extradition, Atty. Gen. Archibald of Vermont is in Tennessee today demanding his surrender. At present he is at large in Tennessee, under $5,000 bonds.

In the heart of the Klan country, and on his native heath, Moyers believes fellow citizens of the Invisible Empire will rally to his support and prevent his extradition.

Much depends upon Gov. Peay of Tennessee; much, but not all. The Vermont authorities are determined

Federal Agents Make Record Seizure Off Plymouth; 14 Men Arrested

Plymouth, Aug. 20.—Moving with precision of a military force, Federal prohibition agents and local police today captured three motorboats, 10,000 gallons of alcohol and fourteen men.

Hidden in the darkness on the shore of the inner harbor, the officers fired a volley of shots over the heads of the rum-runners, causing the immediate surrender of the crews of two boats.

The third attempted to escape, but was captured a short time later by Captain Young and a crew from the East Gurnet coast guard station.

The seizure, said to be the most important made on the South Shore in a considerable time, was engineered by Chief Prohibition Agent A. J. Stroup of Boston.

WATCHED FOR HOURS.

He was accompanied by Agents Powers, Gill, Leavitt and Bligh, with Chief John Armstrong of the local police department and Officers Joseph Schillings, John Barrett and George Bell.

The officers took up a position on the shore of the inner harbor, near a former canning factory, now used for storage, which is a short distance north of the railroad station.

After a vigil of several hours they saw motorboat No. 481, owned by Lawrence Scola of Plymouth, edge into view apparently headed for the old factory. Behind it trailed two other power boats; all apparently heavily-laden. The first craft was evidently acting as a pilot boat.

With weapons in their hands, the officers ran to the water's edge, and firing in the air, demanded the rum runners, surrender.

The engine of the leading boat was reversed, however, and instead of obeying the command, this craft spun about and disappeared in the darkness.

ALCOHOL IN OLD FACTORY.

The other men jumped overboard and waded ashore, where they were handcuffed and taken to the old factory temporarily. Here, much to their surprise, the officers found 2,000 gallons of alcohol cached.

In the meantime a telephone warning was sent to Captain Young, who, with a crew of men manned his lifeboat and started up the inner harbor from the coast guard station.

Off the Stevens Field playground they came upon the missing craft and seized it. They said Scola was at the helm and the boat contained 2,000 gallons of alcohol. The other two boats were also stocked with thousands of gallons.

All the men were taken to the local police station and booked, after which they all obtained bail of $500 each and were released. The motorboats were placed under guard at Commonwealth Pier and will be taken to Boston by the coast guard cutter Onaipee.

The men captured were booked as

EDDIE MAHAN TO COACH HARVARD VARSITY TEAM

Eddie Mahan of Natick has been selected by the Harvard athletic directors to coach the varsity baseball team. Mahan for three years previous to his graduation was the bright star of the university athletes.

Not only on the football field, but playing baseball, Mahan was a leading factor in bringing victory to the Crimson time and again.

Fred Mitchell, former manager of the Boston Braves, was again selected to coach the battery candidates out for the varsity nine, and will be in a position to give Mahan valuable assistance.

SIX INJURED IN CAMBRIDGE LUMBER FIRE

The charred body of "Chi," a collie dog, found in the ruins of Storehouse No. 1 today strengthened the belief that Andrew McKenna, a watchman, lost his life in the fire that destroyed the plant of the John M. Woods Lumber Company, Bridge street, Cambridge.

"Chi" was the constant companion of McKenna, and the discovery of his body spurred the firemen to renewed efforts in the search for that of the missing watchman.

These efforts were intensified by the presence of Andrew McKenna, Jr., a son of the watchman, who was forcibly restrained from plunging into the smoking ruins in search of his father.

SIX PUT OUT.

Six firemen were overcome or injured in fighting the blaze, for which Deputy Chief Cutler Voss summoned aid from Somerville and Boston.

They were:

Frank Jefferson and Thomas Fitzgerald, Engine 1, Cambridge, overcome.

Dennis Collins, Hose 8, Somerville, foot cut.

Charles Marlow, Hose 8, Somerville, hit by falling timber

William Witham and John Anderson, Engine 8, Cambridge, overcome.

The blaze, which started in the office building shortly after midnight swept the entire yard, and destroyed

Radio Set for Every Blind Child in New York City

New York, Aug. 20 (Universal).—A radio receiving set for every blind dependent child in the city is the object of a campaign started here by the Lions, an organization of business men.

What the Lions ask in their effort to send a substitute for light into the dark existence of the juvenile blind, is only discarded radio sets and parts from persons who have them collecting dust about their houses.

4 GUNMEN FOIL POLICE IN CHASE

Dash From Skinner's Store and Get Away in Auto, Chased by Taxi Drivers

Carl H. Skinner's jewelry store at No. 300 Boylston street was held up today and a casket of gems, rings and watches was stolen. Mr. Skinner estimates his loss at $100,000 to $150,000.

One of the boldest robberies ever recorded in Boston, the hold-up was executed while scores of persons passed in and out of the subway station nedoss the way, on the edge of the Public Garden, and dozens of automobiles sped up and down Boylston street.

Four men were concerned in the job. They were all between twenty-four and twenty-six years old. Apparently all were of foreign birth.

MANAGER KNOCKED DOWN.

Entering the store a few minutes after it was opened, the quartet found Frederick W. Ives, manager, and John W. Stead, the messenger boy, taking the casket of watches and jewels out of the safe, preparatory to stocking the show windows and display tables.

One man carried a revolver in plain sight. Apparently the others had arms concealed.

Ives was swept off his feet and pinned to the floor by one of the bandits.

"A pip out of you and it's curtains," he was assured, the robber pressing his knee into his back.

The three others rushed to the safe, seized the chest or casket, and ran to the automobile they had left driverless at the curb.

The man holding Ives on the floor

VERMONT DEMANDS MOYERS, FUGITIVE KLEAGLE, FOR TRIAL

KLAN IN NORTHERN N. E. IS SPLIT BY DISSENSION

It is the charge at the State of Vermont that Moyers, all organizing Kleagle, conspired with Gordon Wells and William McCreedy, probationary Klansmen, to raid the Catholic cathedral at Burlington and burn and pillage other churches.

They did, in fact, loot the cathedral, being discovered at their work and routed.

McCreedy, slow-footed, was caught almost red-handed. Wells was arrested in the town of Jericho, Vt., being advised by friends to surrender.

Wells made a complete confession implicating Moyers. McCreedy followed suit.

The men said the Kleagle told them arms were stored in the cathedral basement and took them in to prove it to them.

Once in, he began stripping the rich altar of its treasures in silver, gold and satin.

KLAN UPRISING.

Now that Moyers is in trouble, he has been repudiated by Kleagle E. L. Rush of Burlington, who says that the raid on the cathedral was undertaken to stir up feeling and discredit him.

Moyers is the direct cause of the uprising of New England klansmen against King Kleagle Blackburn and Gayer of New Hampshire.

It is alleged that these two gentlemen, or others delegated by them, enabled the church looter to escape at the moment that Rush, speaking for the Vermont klansmen, promised the constituted authorities every aid in apprehending him.

It is said that Moyers has boasted of this aid and predicted that more aid will be extended by the klansmen of his native State and he will escape the consequences of his acts.

Such conduct does not set well with Vermont and New Hampshire Yankees, taught to believe, with Calvin Coolidge, in the sanctity of law and order.

Kleagles and district kleagles are advising their followers to withdraw from the organization.

PLAN MANY MEETINGS.

Meetings of virtually all the klaverns in New England will be held in the next fortnight and the question of withdrawal will be taken up.

Already hundreds of klansmen in Bennington and Windham counties in Vermont and Cheshire and Sullivan counties in New Hampshire have interwoven the Klan and burned their sheets and robes.

It is predicted that there will be a complete breakup of the order in northern New England and that it will prove the beginning of a reaction against the Klan in the East and North.

Absenteeism in control is what is bothering the New Englanders.

Most of the officers sent to this section to organize remain to exercise absolute power. Most of them come from Indiana, Blackburn and Gayer did.

Another thing annoying to Vermonters and Bay Staters is the unconcealed commercialism of the organizers. For each candidate, the organizer gets $3. The king kleagle of the State, or realm, gets $2. There is a close corporation of organizers and king kleagles as a result, it is alleged.

MAY IGNORE LEADERS.

Kleagles, of course, are appointed by the king kleagles, who are appointed by the imperial junta in the Palace at Atlanta.

Consequently, those kleagles who are leading the rebellion are sacrificing their positions with the Klan, as they can be deposed at the will of the men they are attacking.

So indignant are some of the kleagles that they are planning to ignore the imperial authority and pay back the $10 initiation fees of dissatisfied klan neophytes.

Klansmen who are getting out of the order say they went in believing the Klan claim that it stood for law and order. They cannot stand the idea of Klan officials circumventing the law and aiding in the escape of a man charged with a felony.

It is believed that the storm in the New England realms will result in the recall of the objectionable king kleagles and the inauguration of a new and more moderate policy by their successors.

DEATH GUN AND SPOT WHERE QUINCY MAN WAS MURDERED

Joseph Bucinni, owner of the granite works shown above, was shot down by his overseas chum, Sebastinno De Cristofaro, because the former, it is alleged, had jokingly said that he had kissed the wife of Cristofaro secretly five times. Five shots were fired. The latter's first shot was fired in the office indicated by the figure 1, at the right. Then, as Bucinni staggered out into the road, Cristofaro followed him up, firing his second shot at a point near the auto indicated by figure 2. The third shot was fired at a point indicated by the figure 3 and the fourth and fifth shots at a point indicated by the figure 4. Here Bucinni fell mortally wounded. At up per left is shown the 22-caliber revolver with which the murder was committed. Inset at upper right is of Nellie Bonino of Braintree, to whom Bucinni was to have been married next Saturday. Inset at left of Miss Bonino is of Sebastinno De Cristofaro, who is under arrest accused of the murder.

GALE PREVENTS NEW START OF WORLD FLIERS

Delays Return of the Cruiser Richmond With Parts to Repair Planes

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 21, (A.P.).—The American round-the-world fliers had made all preparations to start today on their long and hazardous hop to Frederickdal near Cape Farewell, East Greenland, but unfavorable weather again forced them to abandon their plan.

A gale delayed the arrival here of the United States cruiser Richmond which brought spare parts with which the two machines are being repaired.

Blunderer Put Plane Parts on Richmond

By DAMON RUNYON.

On Board U. S. S. Richmond, at Sea, Aug. 20.—(Via Reykjavik, Universal Radio to Halifax.) — When the world flight bogged down it was discovered that some genius had put all the spare parts aboard the Richmond when Admiral Magruder left Iceland.

If the parts had been handy when the accident occurred it would have taken only a few hours to make the repairs. As it was, Lieutenant Smith had to radio Admiral Magruder to return with the parts.

It was my opinion the fliers would reach Boston around September 1, but this accident makes it impossible they will reach there before the latter part of September, if at all.

200 ILLINOIS COAL MINES CLOSED DOWN

Herrin, Ill., Aug. 20 (I.N.S.).—With more than 200 Illinois mines shut down and thousands of coal miners in Southern Illinois out of work and in cases in want, representatives of coal producing and coal consuming industries of Illinois met here today to discuss the resulting problems.

$100,000 GEMS CARRIED OFF BY BANDITS

followed them, and before the manager could regain his feet the machine was off along Boylston street toward Church street.

Young Stead, the messenger boy, meanwhile, had been ignored by the bandits and had run to the rear of the store and secured a revolver.

When he returned the robbers were climbing into the automobile, and when he reached the street they were speeding away.

He and Ives set up an outcry and at the suggestion of citizens he discharged the revolver to summon police.

Traffic police and patrolmen responded, as well as a squad of taxicab drivers.

The taxi drivers volunteered for the pursuit, and the policemen rode on the running boards.

TAXIS GIVE CHASE.

Mack Pratt, Harry Reinstein, Eugene Marrum and Morris Lipinsky were the taxi volunteers.

The chase led along Boylston street to Church street; through Columbus avenue to Chandler street.

There, in a rush of traffic, the pursuing machines lost the bandit car, which was being driven at better than sixty miles an hour.

There was some shooting in the course of the pursuit, according to bystanders, although no policemen could be found afterward who would admit discharging their firearms.

The chase caused intense excitement in Boston's most exclusive shopping district, wealthy woman shoppers as well as shop girls and janitors being witnesses.

A general alarm was sent out from police headquarters as soon as the magnitude of the holdup was understood. For hours police were rushed about in the shopping district and in Cambridge.

AUTO PLATE STOLEN.

The automobile in which the robbers arrived in front of the store and made their getaway bore the license plate Massachusetts, No. 256,761.

That plate was stolen from a machine standing in the rear of No. 331 Huntington avenue, a half-hour before the hold-up.

The latter machine is registered with State Registrar Goodale as the property of C. W. Clark of No. 68 Liberty avenue, Somerville.

Mr. Skinner was much perturbed when he arrived. After an inventory he said his loss would be $150,000, if not more.

Manager Ives told him that the robbers had a lookout, who was outside the store when it was opened.

The man was about thirty-two years old. He peered intently through the window while the casket of watches and jewels was being taken from the safe.

When the time for action came he disappeared. He took no active part in the robbery. He has been noticed lurking around the store early in the morning for a week.

In their rush out of the store with the casket, the bandits knocked down a young woman who was passing.

She is Miss Amy Conway of No. 35 Queensboro street, a saleswoman in the gown shop of Moir & Grant, on Boylston street. She was not seriously injured.

The daring of the bandits is indicated by the fact that a traffic policeman was on duty at Arlington and Boylston street, less than fifty yards away, when they executed their coup.

Ives, the manager of the rifled store, lives in Winthrop. Young Stead lives at No. 32A Columbia street, Malden. He is fifteen years old.

41 Dead, 8,000 Flee Earthquake in Turkestan

London, Aug. 20.—An earthquake near Osh, in the Province of Semiryechensk, Russian Turkestan, has caused the death of forty-one persons in three villages and rendered 8,000 people homeless, says a dispatch to the Evening News from Allahabad, India, quoting advices to the newspaper Pioneer.

More than 1,000 houses were destroyed.

SAYS LEOPOLD'S PHILOSOPHY WAS WRONG

Chicago, Aug. 20 (A.P.).—Forensic efforts continued today at the hearing of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, confessed kidnapers and murderers.

Thomas Marshall, assistant State's attorney, started with a reference to defence testimony that Leopold considered himself a superman.

"So did the Chicago Anarchists of thirty-five years ago consider themselves supermen," said Mr. Marshall. "They sought to destroy the land with dynamite. These men would destroy it by other means, but on similar philosophical grounds."

The findings of the Supreme Court of the United States in the polygamy cases against Mormon leaders were referred to as another instance in which a philosophy was disregarded by the courts as a mitigation.

"When Leopold, Jr., put his views into action and committed murder, he went beyond the pale of rightful philosophy and it is for the overt act itself that he is to be punished," declared Marshall. "We will show that within the law these defendants are responsible; that their beliefs may not be urged as mitigation of the offense, and that the judgment must be based upon the turpitude of the crime."

He then turned to the definitions of murder in the Illinois statutes to show that the crime against young Franks came within those laws. There was, he urged, no element of justifiable homicide present to warrant any punishment "short of the penalty of death."

$725 STOLEN GEMS GET TRUCK DRIVER IN COURT

Ralph Collings, truck driver, of No. 86 Norway street, Back Bay, was in Brighton Court today, charged with receiving stolen goods valued at $725. They were diamond cardrops and other jewels, the property of Michael H. Glynn of No. 18 William Jackson avenue, Brighton. Special Officer Willard, who recovered the jewels, said they were turned over to Collings by William Brogle of Shepard street, Brighton, now awaiting a hearing for robbing the Glynn house of jewelry valued at $2,200.

GEORGE H. DIMAN, TEXTILE EXPERT, DEAD

Lawrence, Aug. 20.—George H. Diman, former consulting engineer of the American Woolen Company, died suddenly today at his home, 60 Abbott street. He was born in Fall River, 79 years ago, and until his retirement a few years ago had been with the American Woolen Company from the time of its founding. He held membership in many engineering societies.

MIMIC BANDITS WILL ATTACK MAIL TRAIN

New York, Aug. 20.—Make-believe bandits in the employ of the government and the New York Central Railroad today practiced their most formidable artistry upon one of the 3,000 Burlington bandit-proof railway postal carriers recently purchased by the government.

A fake holdup, under the official guise of a demonstration, will be staged some time today on one of the New York Central's passenger and mail trains between here and Albany.

Details of the planned demonstration have been withheld. It is known, however, that it will take place at some small station among the cliffs which line the Hudson on the New York to Albany route, probably at Brewster, thirty-six miles from here.

Purchase of the 3,000 specially constructed carriers is understood to have been ordered by the government after the holdup of a train near Chicago, several months ago, when bandits escaped with $3,500,000 in cash and negotiable securities.

QUINCY SLAYER IS ARRAIGNED IN COURT

Sebastinno De Cristofaro was arraigned in Quincy District Court today, charged with the murder of Joseph Bucinni.

According to the police, the defendant has admitted shooting Bucinni at the Eagle granite quarry, sending five bullets into the body of his victim, to correspond to Bucinni's boast that he had met Cristofaro's wife secretly five times.

He told the police he wished his victim to be able to count the shots and now what they meant.

At Quincy police station Cristofaro confessed to the shooting. He said he had planned it for two months and that a week ago he heard Bucinni was to be married on Saturday.

TWO LYNN WOMEN TO TURN $50,000 GIFTS TO CHARITY WORK

KEPT HARD ON THE JOB 40 YEARS

Shoe Maker Rewards Them as Responsible for Success; Slights His Son

More than forty years' devotion of two women bookkeepers to the shoe manufacturing business of their late employer, Valorous K. Jones of Lynn, was rewarded today in the probating of his will, which left them $50,000 each and the income from the residue of his $300,000 estate, which amounts to about $5,000 yearly for each.

It is understood that the two beneficiaries are to apply the greater part of their fortune to charity.

Harry E. Jones of Allston, the only son, received only $10,000 and half the income of the residue after death of his uncle, Alvarado H. Jones, who is eighty years old.

The shoe manufacturer had for years stated that the services of the two bookkeepers, the Misses Nellie E. Walker and Addie Corbett, both of Lynn, was largely responsible for his success. Both women were second cousins of the late Mrs. Valorous K. Jones.

Dissatisfaction with the provisions of his father's will caused the son to engage Sherman L. Whipple and other legal lights and put up strenuous opposition to its allowance.

Jones alleged that the Misses Walker and Colbert might have obtained the bequests through fraudulent means. The will was probated only after Jones had withdrawn this opposition, agreeing to abide by the conditions set forth in the will and codicil.

Valorous Jones died on March 5, 1923.

The Misses Walker and Colbert declined to serve as executors and trustees under the will and assented to Alvarad H. Jones' appointment as sole executor and trustee. The will was then allowed as it stands.

At the home of the Misses Walker and Colbert, at No. 520 Essex street, Lynn, it was reported that they were away for the Summer and could not be reached.

THIERY LETTER

to be a good Christian and want to go to join Louise and David in Heaven now.

NERVES WORN OUT.

My nerves have been worn out or months. This last addition to the strain is too great. Very little sleep for over a week now except that given by the anesthetic. Last night God seemed to say I might come so I am going. Good-by and good luck.

Your loving son,
RAYMOND.

The note to Chief of Police Kendall of Somerville was as follows:

Dear Sir:

I cannot stand the strain any longer. I did not murder my brother-in-law, David. Perhaps there were two men in our house when David came home that fatal night. I do not believe any human being now dead or alive can tell us the whole story.

I want to thank the Police Department for everything, but I think much more could have been done to help me sleep, the loss of which has been te cause of the act tonight. Please give the enclosed letters to my mother and father.

Very truly yours,
R. D. THIERY.

By "the act tonight" he refers to the suicide attempt, made early Monday morning.

INSISTS ON DELETIONS.

The farewell notes were made public today by District Attorney Arthur Reading of Middlesex. He was reluctant, but said in view of the public insistence he thought it was necessary.

He insisted on a few deletions.

In some quarters there was a disposition to regard the notes as an effort to set up an insanity defence for Thiery.

Physicians said Thiery might have known he wouldn't die, and have made the allusions to God calling him to make himself appear mentally incompetent.

The reference to the "pin" in the note to "Hreat" meant the pin to refer to a fraternity pin she gave him when they became engaged. They traded fat pins.

BOLT WIPES OUT 13 BEACH COTTAGES

Toledo, O., Aug. 20. (I.N.S.)—Fire today swept cottages on the Toledo Beach line, near Lakeside, Mich. Thirteen cottages were destroyed. According to reports here the blaze started from an explosion when lightning struck some wiring during a thundershower.

WHERE FLAMES DEVOURED PILES OF COSTLY TIMBER

RUINS OF JOHN M. WOODS LUMBER COMPANY, BRIDGE STREET, CAMBRIDGE

Six fire fighters were injured or overcome and the yard watchman is missing in the fire which destroyed the lumber plant early today. Inset shows Jack Lacey of Engine 2, Cambridge Fire Department, who rescued his company mate William A. Wilson, when the latter was overcome by smoke while fighting the fire in the mahogany storehouse of the John M. Woods Lumber Company.

FOUR CAPTURED WITH LIQUOR IN BEVERLY

Motor Boat and Auto Truck Yield 450 Gallons of Contraband

Beverly, Aug. 20.—Four men are under arrest in this city charged with illegally transporting liquor. They were arrested at different times by different officers.

The first seizure was made by Patrolman Charles Adams, who noticed a number of men acting suspiciously near the Margin street wharf. While he watched them a motorboat came ashore and unloaded 200 gallons of liquor, which was placed in a high-powered touring car.

When the automobile left the dock and proceeded along Margin street Officer Adams ordered the driver to halt. Three men were in the car at the time and were placed under arrest. They gave their names as H. F. Ritchie, Augustine De Quarte and Michael Shotto, all of Lawrence.

Later in the morning Patrolman William Perry pulled a truck containing 250 gallons of contraband. The truck was in charge of Samuel Sandler of Chelsea.

MARS TO SHOW BEST DURING OCTOBER

Lowell Observatory Expert Expects Planet to Reveal Secret Then

Prescott, Ariz., Aug. 20.—August 22, the date when the planet Mars is nearest the earth, is not the time astronomers at Lowell Observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., expect to obtain best results from their study. October, according to Earl Slipher, photographic expert of the observatory, will reveal to scientists results that will be astonishing.

It is the progress of the seasons on Mars and not its comparatively close approach to the earth this week that will supply the students with the data for which they have been striving for many years, he said.

Blots of dark colored surface material, believed to be vegetation, are now developing at predicted points on the planet, it was said, the shading of these areas is about half as dark as it has been observed at the most favorable times in the past. With the advance of the seasons on Mars, these dark belts are expected by Dr. Slipher to assume a sharpness of form and a definiteness of markings that will surpass the best results ever obtained.

R. I. LEADERS AT FUNERAL OF SENATOR COLT

Providence, Aug. 20.—LeBaron Bradford Colt, senior United States Senator from Rhode Island, and one of America's most distinguished citizens, was laid to rest today.

Leaders of both political parties in the State, headed by Governor William S. Flynn and staff, together with many prominent national figures, attended the funeral, which was held from his late home, Linden place, Bristol. Burial was in the family lot at Juniper Hill Cemetery.

As a mark of respect for Senator Colt, who was a Federal judge for thirty years, the United States District Court here was closed for three hours today. Judge Arthur L. Brown, United States Marshal William R. Rodman, United States District Attorney Norman S. Case with his staff and Miss Alice Peckham, clerk of the court, attended the funeral.

For two hours the body lay in state while hundreds of friends and admirers took their last look at the famous jurist and statesman. Flags on all public buildings were flown at half staff.

Bishop James De Wolf Perry officiated at the funeral services, as stated by the Rev. Charles Mason Gross of South Barre, Mass., and the Rev. Anson B. Howard, rector of St. Michael's Church, Bristol.

The honorary pallbearers were Judge Arthur L. Brown, Judge William W. Douglas, Dr. W. H. P. Faunce, former Gov. Augustus O. Bourn, Ezra Dixon, Charles B. Seger of New York, Col. Samuel M. Nicholson, former Sen. Henry F. Lippitt, Sen. Peter G. Gerry, Representative Richard S. Aldrich, Clark Burdick and Jeremiah F. O'Connell, Col. H. M. Brown, Samuel Norris, Walter S. Ballou, T. P. I. McDonnell, Walter F. Angell, Edward B. Aldrich, Nathan Anthony, George L. Gross, Charles D. Owen, Ernest Hopkinson and William B. Greenough. Kearney post, No. 1, American Legion acted as escort.

GERMANY ACCUSED OF MAKING ARMS IN SPAIN

Paris, Aug. 20 (I.N.S.)—Accusation that Germany is converting Spain into an arsenal for construction of armaments and munitions for future use by the Germans was made by the newspaper Matin today. It was asserted that German capitalists, notably the Krupps, have purchased Spanish shipping companies, industries and docks for the purpose of arming Germany in the future. The Matin printed a letter purporting to reveal that German companies in Spain are manufacturing heavy artillery and munitions to be delivered to Germany at a later date.

GIANT GERMAN BLIMP OFF FOR U. S. IN SEPT.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Aug. 20 (A. P.)—The ZR-3, giant dirigible which is being built here for the United States, probably will start her long flight to Lakehurst, N. J., about the middle of September, it was announced today. Inflation with with hydrogen gas of the 14 compartments of the ZR-3 is progressing favorably.

RECOGNIZES NORWAY'S RIGHTS TO SPITZENBERGEN

Rome, Aug. 20.—The official Gazette publishes a decree ratifying the convention concluded at Paris in February, 1920, between Italy and the other powers, recognizing the sovereignty of Norway over the Archipelago of Spitzbergen.

4 P. C. Reduction in Employment; 7.8 Cut in Payrolls

Washington, Aug. 20.—Declines of 4 per cent. in industrial employment and per capita earnings and of 7.8 per cent in payroll totals were reported today by the Labor Department on the basis of July figures from 8,789 establishments in 52 lines of manufacture.

The plants reporting had 2,489,347 employes on their payrolls in one week last month.

ALIENISTS FAIL TO AGREE ON KID M'COY

Los Angeles, Aug. 20 (Universal)—Was "Kid" McCoy's brainstorm in the city jail the result of a disordered brain, as his friends and attorneys claim?

Or was he simply faking when he tore papers into bits, fought imaginary rats, and called up the ghost of Mrs. Theresa Mora, of whose murder he is accused, and conversed with her spirit in his cell?

The alienists from the district attorney's office who visited McCoy are frankly divided in their opinion as to McCoy's sanity.

Dr. Parkin and Dr. Paul Bowers said a later examination has not changed their opinion. He is perfectly sane, these two experts assert.

"I am somewhat in doubt," said Dr. Louis Weber. "I must reserve my opinion. McCoy's hallucination of Mrs. Mora' visit to him in jail is an indication that he has a mental aberration."

McCOY INDICTED.

Formally charging the former boxer with the slaying of Mrs. Theresa Mora, wealthy antique dealer, the County Grand Jury returned two indictments against McCoy before presiding Judge Crail of the Superior Court.

One indictment charges the murder of Mrs. Mora, on or about August 12, in the Nottingham Apartments. A second indictment, containing seven counts, charges robbery and assault with intent to kill. The latter charges are based on McCoy's alleged holdup of Mrs. Mora' West 7th street antique shop following her death.

20 WITNESSES TESTIFY.

While this hold-up was in progress McCoy is asserted to have shot and seriously wounded W. G. Ross, an eastern millionaire; Sam Schapps and his wife, Mrs. Anna Schapp.

The grand jury's action followed the examination of twenty witnesses before that body by District-Attorney Keyes.

When the grand jury began its investigation Albert A. Mora, divorced husband of the slain woman, was the first witness called. A large number of others testified.

One of the most important witnesses heard was Mrs. Iva Martin, who occupied an apartment directly underneath that of Mrs. Mora. Mrs Martin had stated that she discovered Mora was the man she had seen running from the apartment a few minutes after she heard the shot that killed Mrs. Mora.

Police detectives, however, disagreed with Mrs. Martin and declared the man was McCoy.

COOLIDGE GOES MOTORING OVER COUNTRYSIDE

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 20.—President Coolidge planned today to renew acquaintances and associations of old. The President is anxious to "get around a little" and see some of the friends of his youth. Consequently a long motor drive through the country has been planned. Only one definite call was on the schedule, however.

Any other stops will be left to the whim of Mr. Coolidge. The first visit will be to the farm of Dick Brown, temporary headquarters of the Home Town Coolidge Club, a political organization conceived by the natives of Plymouth township. The home town club now boasts of a membership of 14,000, each having paid one dollar.

The enterprising officers of the club have placed a register in the home of Colonel John C. Coolidge, the President's father. Each of the many tourists who pass through here daily are offered an opportunity to finance and become a member.

The President and family listened on the radio to the speech of General Charles G. Dawes, delivered at Evanston, Ill., accepting the Republican nomination for the vice-presidency.

LENT ANN LUTHER 35 CENTS; WANTS IT

Los Angeles, Aug. 20.—Ann Luther, who recently lost her $100,000 breach of contract suit against Jack F. White, wealthy mining man, who, she alleged, had promised to star her in motion pictures, has been made defendant in a suit brought in Superior Court here by Nathan Burkan, New York attorney, seeking judgment of $500.35.

Burkan asked $500 for services he said he performed for Miss Luther in New York, and return of 35 cents he claims to have advanced her in cash.

GERMAN PRISONERS OF WAR HELD IN SIBERIA

Berlin, Aug. 20.—Bernhard Jantos, a former German soldier, who was believed to be dead, is back home after having spent nearly ten years in Siberia as a prisoner.

Jantos says there is still a large number of German war prisoners in Siberia, especially in the District of Tomsk. These men have not been able to communicate with German government representatives and are unable to leave the country, owing to lack of funds and poor transportation facilities.

The government will take steps to repatriate the men.

FORD TO SELL COAL IN DULUTH THIS FALL

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 20.—Bituminous coal from Henry Ford's mines in Kentucky will be offered for public sale late this Fall and early next Winter, according to W. B. Mayo, chief engineer for the Ford Motor Company.

Mayo indicated that most of the coal now being received at the Ford dock will be used by the Ford plants in the twin cities and other Northwest points.

Find Rum on Lone Boat

Providence, Aug. 20.—Prohibition agents seized the abandoned motor boat Chimera of Pawtucket, said to be owned by Isaac Hanna of Pawtucket, with 17 cases of liquor which was released from Federal custody July 12.

thousands of dollars worth of lumber.

LAST BOX PULLED

When the embers had cooled sufficiently to permit an investigation it was learned that McKenna pulled his last box of his nightly round before the start of the fire, in Storehouse No. 1, where the dog's body was found.

Deputy Chief Cutler Vose ordered a general alarm and also called for aid from Somerville and Boston. Fire boat No. 39 was sent to the scene and worked from the Charles River to prevent the flames from spreading into the Boston & Maine freight yards a short distance away.

Police and volunteers led forty horses from the stable of the Wellington & Bridge Coal Company at one end of the lumber yard. Horses were also taken from other stables near the scene.

The cause of the fire has not been determined and no estimate of the loss has been made.

McKenna lived at No. 47 Cross street, Somerville.

SOVIET RUSSIA BLIND TO RIGHT, SAYS SPARGO

Williamstown, Aug. 20.—The attempt of soviet Russia to defeat the Dawes report is "a crime against civilization greater than the crime of bringing about the great war itself," said John Spargo, moderate socialist, at the Institute of Politics today.

The sole Russian animus, he continued, was directed "against the fact that the Dawes plan will make possible the restoration of European civilization."

Stephen Panaretoff, Bulgarian minister to the United States, asserted that if the Bulgarian request for permission to raise 2,000 volunteers is denied "all one can say is that the allies are working for the bolsheviki."

POULTRY CRATES HELD 1,560 BOTTLES OF BEER

Pilsener and poultry are worlds apart, but 1560 bottles of excellent Pilsener beer were discovered today in poultry crates unloaded from a truck seized on Chelsea street, in Charlestown. Patrolman McGee made the capture. Noticing the sagging springs of a truck, he caused it to halt, and arrested Ruben Kaplan of No. 36 Balfour street, Roxbury, after investigating the contents. Reuben was held in $1,000 by Judge Sullivan in Charlestown court.

RUFFO REACHES MILAN FOR MATTEOTTI FUNERAL

Milan, Italy, Aug. 20.—Titta Ruffo, baritone, brother of the widow of Giacomo Matteotti, the socialist deputy whose body was found near Rome last week after being missing for more than two months, has arrived from Bogota, Colombia, to attend the funeral. Signor Ruffo was singing in Rigoletto at Bogota when he received a cablegram notifying him of his brother-in-law's disappearance.

Hits Insurance Firms

Manila, Aug. 20.—The Senate has passed a bill requiring all foreign insurance companies to invest 50 per cent. of their profits made in the Philippine Islands in Philippine securities or real estate. The bill goes to the House.

ANXIETY GROWS ABOUT DR. AND MRS. RICE

American Explorer and Wife Still Missing in South American Wilds

Buenos Aires, Aug. 20.—News as to the whereabouts of Dr. Alexander Hamilton Rice, American explorer, and his wife, the former Mrs. George D. Widener, is still lacking, says a despatch from the Rio Janeiro correspondent of La Nacion.

Dr. and Mrs. Rice are on an expedition bound for Manaos to begin an exploration of the Rio Negro Valley.

The Rio dispatch says the director of the Bureau of the Brazilian Ministry of Justice addressed a telegram last Saturday to the Federal judge at Manaos asking the whereabouts of the Rice party.

Telegraphic communication with the State of Amazonas, however, is delayed and the correspondent was informed by the director of the bureau that he had thus far received no reply.

Concern for the safety of Dr. Rice and his party was expressed here recently by relatives, owing to rumors of unrest in the Manaos district.

DOCTOR WHO HALTED TYPHUS DIES IN WEST

Chicago, Aug. 20.— Dr. Samuel J. Walker, who during the World War was credited with stemming the typhus epidemic in Macedonia, is dead at Lake Forest, a suburb, after a stroke of paralysis. He was fifty-seven years old, a native of Covington, Ky.

BRITAIN'S HEIR PUTS BAN ON STIFF SHIRTS

Prince of Wales Favors Soft Silk Article for Use Every Day

Deauville, France, Aug. 20.—Stiff-bosomed, hard-boiled shirts for evening wear, from which mankind has been seeking to emancipate himself for a couple of centuries, are doomed, is the consensus of opinion following the Prince of Wales' adoption of an ordinary soft, bosomless silk shirt with starchless cuffs, at the Deauville Casino.

"This trip only cost me 200,000 francs ($10,000), but it was well worth it. I never knew there was such a fine crowd here," said the Prince before starting motoring for Le Touque today, whence he is proceeding to Boulogne and Folkstone preparatory to sailing for the United States Saturday.

A Greek syndicate, Vagliano and Zographias, resumed the bankers' chair in the baccarat room vacated by Andre Citroen today and immediately began slamming punters, dragging down coup after coup, with more than 500,000 francs ($25,000) bet every time.

Seventy-five chemin de fer tables and five baccarat tables were working from 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon until daybreak this morning.

ARTISTS' COLONY PLANS BALL AT ROCKPORT

Rockport, Aug. 20.—The annual costume ball of the Rockport Artists' Association will be held in the Rockport Town Hall tomorrow night. More than 800 persons, for the most part artists, art students and Bohemians in general, are expected to attend.

Biggest Society Lion Hunt When Britain's Heir Comes

By BETTY ALDEN.

WHAT a fanfare of the social trumpets there will be when the Prince of Wales arrives next month for the International Polo matches!

Competition for social "lions" is always keen, even for the smaller ones that haven't much roar. Just picture the furore which the dashing young heir to the British throne will create. The biggest lion—not of one—but many seasons!

The hosts and hostesses along Long Island will make the most of every precious minute the Prince lingers within their midst. Entertainments galore are being planned for the royal visitor.

To capture the Prince for one of that function will be a very large feather in the cap of the chosen few fortunate enough to do so.

Rumor has it that King George's sport-loving son is also to sojourn for a while on Massachusett's North Shore. But that, as yet is still rumor.

THE international Polo matches, held at Meadow Brook, L. I., will begin September 6, continuing for about a week. The tournament always attracts a tremendous gathering of all the elite of notables, both in social and official life. This year the gathering bids fair to stand out as the most brilliant assembly in the history of American sports.

The first formal affair in honor of the Prince will be a stag dinner at the Piping Rock Club, on September 3d, with the officers and governors of the club acting as hosts

Announcement of the box-holders for the Meadow Brook matches has been made, and I note that a number of Boston folk are included in the list.

Among them is sport-devoted "Eleo" Sears, as well as Allan Forbes, Augustus F. Goodwin, B. Mason Hamlin, Freddy Prince, Jr., James H. Proctor, Quincy A. Shaw, 2nd, and Mrs. Charles G. Weld.

APROPOS of sporting events taking place nearer at home, all the usual horse show "ring-siders" turned out for the show held Saturday at the Burroughs estate in Hamilton.

The sun shone most benignly for the occasion, and a right tidy sum must have rolled its way into the coffers of Welcome House, for whose benefit the equine affair was staged.

A busy group of matrons and maids served tea, with handsome Mrs. Augustus N. Rantoul one of the guiding spirits. Mrs. John S. Parker was among her co-workers, while of the young girls dark-haired Miss Barbara Forbes proved indispensable as a tray-carrier.

Of the sub-debs helping was Miss Eleanor Mason, who was most meticulous at her task, and wore a pair of white gloves all the time she was serving the box-holders with tea and cake. Joan Higginson and Polly Thayer were other sub-deb assistants.

Many eyes were turned to the box occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Mason and their guests. The former Constance Gardner Minot wore a "floppy" wide-brimmed hat and a rather odd cape of dark brown—a three-tiered affair of accordion-pleated crepe.

Not a few stopped to chat a few minutes with Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell. The former "Sister" Caswell was looking quite as pretty as ever in a most becoming frock of Alice blue crepe.

Others noted there were Mr. and Mrs. Howland Seabury (Rosamond Johnson), returned not long ago from their wedding journey abroad; Mrs. "Pete" Sortwell accompanied by two of her very attractive little girls; Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, the former Sybil Appleton, looking quite as statuesque as ever and crowned in white; popular Mr. and Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr., and their three little folk as well as Miss Olivia Ames, garbed as simply as usual in a frock of pale lavender linen.

Miss Eleonora Sears, who's pictured here with a whippet, is of the Boston boxholders at the international polo matches beginning September 6

New York, Aug. 20 (Universal)—More than forty employes of the Waldorf-Astoria were remembered in the will of Arthur Fowler, clerk and messenger in the drug store of the hotel.

When Fowler was on his death bed last October he called in John Killackey, cashier of the hotel, and asked him to assist in making the will. Mr. Killackey was astounded to learn that Mr. Fowler had accumulated more than $40,000 and, having no relatives, wished to leave it to the many friends he had made during his fifteen years of service in the hotel.

The administration work has just been completed, and the last of the checks have been distributed. A sister of Dr. Louis Trezise, who runs the drug store, is already carrying out her charge of keeping flowers on Fowler's grave in Cypress Hills, funds for which were provided. He treasured the kind of flowers he knew in his birthplace in England, "a solid blanket of holly and fir at Christmas, pansies at Easter and geraniums and begonias through the year."

GIRLS MAY NOW PICK THEIR OWN STYLE OF MAN

Or They Can Take Anything and Make It Over to Suit, by New System

Chicago, Aug. 20.—More romance has flown through the window, or rather through the open door of the laboratory. The occult has given way to the practical. No longer need the maid about to be married go to a clairvoyant and have the seer gaze into a crystal ball to tell her the future.

Instead, she need only consult a modern text book on kitchen chemistry. Here's what she can map out as her future, if she only cares to, instructions at the University of Chicago today declared:

She can have a handsome husband, healthy and cheerful.

FOR PRETTY CHILDREN.

She can people her cottage or apartment with ruddy-cheeked children, also happy and healthy.

She can ward off accidents, avoid doctors' bills and probably save enough to make the usual "trip across the water" which is included in every seer's prophecy.

"It's all taught in the home economics course at Chicago University," Miss Katherine Blunt, the chairman of the department, declared.

"The educated girl of today"—that is, the girl who goes in for practical education by taking a course in home economics, can make her own future," said Miss Blunt.

CAN MAKE HAPPY HOME.

"By applying the principles of the course to her married life and what girl does not dream of a happy home!—she can make a home happy.

"She can marry a scrawny man and by applying her knowledge of dietetics make him handsome and robust. Robustness, after all, is only a matter of calories. This applies to children, as well.

"Prevention of accidents is also demonstrated. The girl learns how to peel potatoes and pare apples without cutting her fingers. She learns to wash dishes and do her laundry work without danger of getting unsightly hands.

"She learns to avoid fatigue by doing her household work in a correct posture. Time-saving is taught so that she can get in her social obligations and a little leisure besides without slighting her household work.

REAL HOUSEKEEPING.

"She can make her husband happy by knowing how to keep the house free of kitchen odors. She is taught how to fry fat without 'smelling up the house.'"

Miss Blunt sums it all up in this manner:

"The women of today more than ever need to learn economical and efficient ways of homemaking and housekeeping.

"Knowing how to do things the best way in the least time and with the greatest saving of money, not only makes the household run more smoothly but allows the wife and mother to do some of the things she wants to do outside.

"Home economics and not the palmist show the way to true happiness."

TEACHING CUTS CHILD ACCIDENTS 19 PER CENT.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Seven cities which have reported complete figures on child accident fatalities to the National Safety Council show a reduction of 19 per cent. for the first six months of 1924 as compared with the same period in 1923. The council attributes the reduction to safety teaching in schools and to organized community safety.

Piece of Leg Bone Planted in Auto Victim's Spine

Baltimore, Aug. 20.—Doctors at Johns Hopkins Hospital have transplanted a piece of bone from the lower right leg to the spinal column of Forest Wieford, thirty-eight years old, of Newport, W. Va.

Wieford suffered a dislocated vertebrae in an automobile accident three years ago and his condition became gradually worse until he was brought to Hopkins four weeks ago. Removal of the diseased vertebrae followed. A piece of shin bone was then shaped into the form of a vertebrae and inserted in the weakened part of Wieford's back.

MOTHER TRIES TO BAN SON'S MARRIAGE

Youth, 19, Plans to Wed a Widow With Several Children After Hotel Romance

An irate mother is expected to visit the prospective bride of her son, a Tech student, at Magnolia today, in an effort to halt the wedding plans of John J. Corcoran and May Blanchard Hall, assistant bookkeeper at the Oceanside Hotel.

Her objections, it is said, like those of her husband, are based on the extreme youth of their son, who, although he said he was twenty-four years old when he filed marriage intentions at City Hall, is said by his parents to be only nineteen.

The bride-to-be is twenty-six, a widow, with several children. She lives at No. 23 Prospect street, Cambridge, while Corcoran's home is at No. 24 Crescent avenue, Dorchester. He is an electrical engineer at the same hotel where his fiancee is employed.

The written consent of Corcoran's father to his marriage is required by the registrar before he will issue the license. This the father, Joseph J. Corcoran, says he will not give, as his son is too young to marry.

Both father and mother of the youth were surprised when they learned that he intended to wed at once.

Mrs. Hall, when told of the objections of the mother to the marriage said that if the latter does not want her as a daughter-in-law she is willing to abide by her decision. She seeks to avoid trouble.

POLICEMAN CAPTURES ROBBER AT GUN POINT

An attempt to loot the safe of the H. P. Hood & Co. creamery on Cambridge street, Cambridge, was frustrated today by Patrolman Patrick Ready, who arrested Francis Morrison, 24 years old, of Rutherford avenue, Charlestown.

Morrison, charged with breaking and entering, was in the East Cambridge Court, where he pleaded guilty. The case was continued in bail of $1,000.

Patrolman Ready saw a number of Hood drivers grappling with a man. Ready, jamming his gun into the man's ribs, forced him to surrender.

LAWS MUST BE OBEYED, SAYS JACKSON

Rigid enforcement of the prohibition act was today pledged by State Treasurer James Jackson, Republican candidate, for Governor at a field day in Brookfield.

The liquor question was prominently interjected into Jackson's campaign a few days ago when he was accused by William Forgrave, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, of having a well-stocked cellar.

"I have publicly stated my desire for the enforcement of the prohibition act?" Jackson declared. "A plank in my platform calls for the rigid enforcement of all laws, including the provisions of the Volstead act and all laws that may be enacted to aid such enforcement.

"I am in hearty accord with the view expressed by President Coolidge as to the best method of enforcement, that successful enforcement depended primarily on the measure of public sentiment for the observance of the law."

Rescued at Fire

MOTHER AND CHILD

Mrs. Eva Subasky and her daughter, Josephine, two years old, who were saved by Patrolmen John J. Dunn and John Dwyer from the burning building at Nos. 41-43 Boston street, West End. Anthony Subasky, the husband and father, and Helen, three years old, were also rescued. Twelve families were driven to the street.

209 ACCUSED SCOUTS SAY ORDERS JARRED

Manila, Aug. 20.—A courtmartial trying 209 Filipino scouts on charges of mutiny growing out of their refusal to obey orders, today concluded the taking of evidence and took the case under advisement. During the trial some of the defendants testified they didn't obey order because non-commissioned officers gave conflicting and irregular commands.

Train Kills Officials

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—E. C. Henn, sixty-three, vice-president and general superintendent of the National Acme Company of Cleveland, and O. A. Smith, fifty-five, experimental engineer for the concern, were killed today when an automobile was struck by a Nickel Plate train.

GILPATRIC MAY FACE HEARING IN HOSPITAL

Accused Putnam Bank Cashier, Totally Blind, Is Recovering Slowly

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 20.—That G. Harold Gilpatric, former State Treasurer and alleged defaulting cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam, stood the ordeal of his formal arrest on a charge of embezzlement of a nominal $100,000 of the bank's funds, very well and that his condition is good, was stated today by Dr. S. B. Overlock, superintendent of the Day-Kimball.

IS TOTALLY BLIND.

Dr. Overlock also stated that Mr. Gilpatric is totally blind and he does not expect he will ever recover his sight, though expects his recovery from the self-inflicted gunshot and the injuring of sixteen others wound by which he tried to end his life on August 7.

The Federal warrant charging Gilpatric with embezzlement was served by U. S. Marshal Jacob H. Walter in the presence of Dr. Overlock and former Attorney-General William A. Kline of Willimantic, personal counsel for the accused man.

HEARING IN HOSPITAL.

They were given custody of the accused cashier pending such time as it is possible for him to have a hearing before the United States commissioner.

Such a hearing, it is expected, may be arranged at the hospital, if Gilpatric's condition does not permit of his removal from the institution within a short time. Dr. Overlock said that he did not expect a month to lapse before the accused may be discharged the earliest for a number of weeks.

50 FASCIST POLICEMEN AT NAPLES ARRESTED

Naples, Aug. 20.—The government is understood ordered the arrest of fifty Fascist policemen as the result of disturbances here when the attempt of the police to prevent a meeting of opposition adherents resulted in the killing of two persons and the injuring of sixteen others.

CAR OFFICIALS CAN SEE INTO FUTURE

Springfield, Aug. 20.—Taking time by the forelock, the directors of the Springfield Street Railway Company had a quantity of new tickets printed before they petitioned the Public Utilities Commission to allow an increase in fares to ten cents.

The tickets were delivered at the executive offices at least twenty-four hours before President Clark V. Wood filed the petition which would permit the company to inaugurate the new fare temporarily on Monday.

Vice-President Howard R. Whitmore said that although the Public Utilities Commission had not indicated that they intend to grant the concession, the directors decided to have the tickets ready for use.

SHORTER WAVES ARE GROWING IN FAVOR

Experiments Show High Frequencies Can Be Used With Better Results

You who are elated at the performance of your Boston American short wave receiver, will not be disappointed when we say that the possibilities of short wave transmission are mounting rapidly with every succeeding day.

A few years ago the high frequency ranges—from 3,000 kilocycles up—was looked upon as the black sheep of the radio family—suitable for laboratory or other similar work but about as useless as clothing at 1. I tired when it came to reliable communication over appreciable distances. But today the situation is changing.

Reliable experiment shows this to be the fact. Some of the most reliable channels in operation over long distances today are using frequencies of approximately 3,000 kc. and research engineers are continually gathering data to show the feasibility of using even shorter waves. Pittsburg to Hastings and London-Schenectady to California and England, both short wave channels, seem to have attained a remarkable degree of reliability compared to what was to be expected.

With spark wave telegraphy, such short waves would have been of no service at all, for the amount of power which could be sent out in the form of a 100 meter damped wave from a suitable antenna would have been so small as not to reach more than a few miles. There are very important reasons why these high frequencies will do so much more on continuous wave transmission than could be obtained with the spark transmitter.

For a given wave length a much higher antenna can be used with continuous waves than with spark waves and the amount of power which can be sent off is hundreds of times as great with one of its most important characteristics, so much so that it was not allowed to exceed a certain value, as decreed by law. This decrement could not be kept low using as efficient radiators as are our present short wave antennas.

With a good antenna as much as ten kilowatts can be radiated at 2,000 kc. without any trouble at all, and possibly much more than this will be possible when we know more about high wave frequency engineering.

BIG PRIZES WAIT FOR WINNERS

Tune In Those Portables and Shoot Us Your List of Stations

Poor Apple Sauce. Nothing seems to sweeten his nature—especially with his vacation all shot!

No sooner had the new radio contest been announced than it began to snow portable set "wrinkles" and now Apple Sauce looks like Santa Claus after a hard Christmas night.

Seems like every mother's son of a radio fan, and his brother, has been playing about a bit with sets that can be used here today and far away tomorrow. Pretty soon the storm will be a blizzard—if the first day's response counts for anything.

Somewhere on this page you'll find a picture of Hope Hampton. She's a sly little thing and may be hiding behind a binding post in some ad, but you'll find her somewhere, if you look hard enough.

Hope is a good example of a portable radio fan. Apple Sauce says she looks a bit hefty to be easily portable, but he hasn't gotten out of high school yet and he's liable to do that sort of thing anytime.

What we meant was the set she carries. She believes in safety first, so she had a set made in a safety match box. She reads everything but knocks over her set.

This new "howler" of a contest is open to everybody except dealers—we won't even bar that neighbor who won't leave his dials alone or his brother who's always recharging his batteries right in the busiest part of the evening.

The contest is split into two divisions. The first is for the largest number of stations received on a portable set, or any single evening between August 29 and September 2. The list of stations must include the selection or announcement hears and the exact time; the type of set, its factory built, and the specifications and hook-up, if made at home.

Awards in this division will be made on the basis of the number of tubes used in the set.

The second group deals with the best description of the use of a portable set anywhere but at home. Awards will be made on reports which include the greatest number of practical wrinkles for the average person who may wish to take a set away with him on his vacation. These will include ideas for installing antenna and ground, carrying batteries, loud speaker—and any other wrinkles you may discover.

The prizes—ah, the prizes! There will be two sets—one for each group. The first prize will be a complete receiver—the exact receiver to be announced. Second prize will be an Erla kitset; third a loud speaker and the fourth a set of 3 batteries.

Try these on your portable radio!

CAN YOU 'MATCH' HOPE HAMPTON'S SET

RIGHT FROM HOLLYWOOD

Of course pretty Hope Hampton isn't old enough to carry matches—Oh, dear, no! But that isn't the reason she is called matchless. Hope has a match box, though, and she's hoping against Hope that she will hear the plaudits of the Timbuctoo movie fans, via her portable radio set. It's in the matchbox and works perfectly, even if it does hold the record of being the most inexpensive set in existence. Isn't it cute?

U. S. MARINE BAND COMES THROUGH CLEARLY

To secure faithful reproduction of large bands has always been a difficult problem for broadcasting experts. The volumn produced by individual wind instruments varies greatly. The work of each is important to a harmonious whole; consequently, if the microphone is not well placed, a very unfaithful reproduction is secured.

The United States Marine Band, which is broadcasting through Stations WEAF and WCAP, is one of the best examples of such broadcasting and the radio listener can best appreciate this by imagining himself as one of the listeners at the concert hall where the concert is being played rather than as one of the radio audience in his home. Discriminating musicians have frequently remarked regarding the faithful reproduction of the Marine Band.

FARMER, 76, ADMITS HORSEWHIPPING BOY

Worcester, Aug. 20.—Charged with punching and horsewhipping 15-year-old Buddy Clark, a neighbor, Henry Tibbets, seventy-six years old Holden farmer, was arraigned in district court on a charge of assault and battery. The case was filed by Judge Riley.

Tibbets admitted administering the whipping, but said he considered himself justified because the boy had been ordered not to trespass on his property.

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE

By Elenore Meherin

Follow Here the Joys and Sorrows of This Boston Girl You All Meet Every Day

DAVE laughed: "You won't have much to do with her when you're further along—"

"If I get along—"

"I believe you will—"

Chickie said humbly: "Do you really? I think it means more to me to succeed than any other girl in the whole hospital. It really does."

He glanced at her glowing eyes, her lips parted in fervor. He said quietly: "Does it? We'll have to see that you get along, then—"

She was suddenly overwrought, feeling the blood sweeping up to her temples. She shut her eyes.

They dashed together again. Dr. Ramm talked with Jake while Chickie passed the sandwiches.

Nellie Andrews, the senior who had a big, warm heart, whispered to Chickie: "Watch your step, you little fool prob! What do you mean hanging the two handsomest fellows on the floor?"

Tell It to Sweeney

Chickie said: "He just happened to be a friend of Mr. Munson's."

"Tell it to Sweeney—he has cauliflower ears!"

And Jake, when he was leaving, pressed her hands, whispering: "See here, Helena—stay on your knees—mind you now—"

She was excited and couldn't sleep that night. The next morning Miss Alberta lectured on the "Ideals of a Nurse." She sandwiched this talk in between her notes. She said the probationer should learn to sink her egotism in her service giving; that she would never succeed until this was accomplished. Then she said:

"Some of the probationers have the faculty of pushing some of us into the limelight. They haven't intelligence enough to realize that their place is in the wings and not on the stage. There are several, unfortunately, of this type in the present class. I wonder if they realize that a doctor may laugh with a flapper, but he works with a nurse. The two are never found in the same unit."

Chickie took this as a direct speech made for her enlightenment. Her cheeks were flaming. She wondered if every one in the class was observing.

And a few days after this, by the purest accident, she was coming across the street from the store at the same time David Ramm was entering the building. He bowed to her, then he said: "I saw Jake last night." There were a few other desultory remarks. They walked into the corridor together.

Sent for

That afternoon Miss Alberta sent for her. She said: "Miss Bryce, a probationer is not supposed to thrust herself upon the notice of the visiting doctors. You can make yourself very obnoxious. This is the second warning I've given you. Let it be enough."

She turned her back and walked off. Chickie felt a wave of nausea rushing wanly over her. She felt tears flying to her eyes.

On her way to her room she bumped into Nellie Andrews. Nellie saw her eyes. "What's the matter, little prob?"

Chickie told her.

"Don't pay any attention to it. She gives it to everyone. Didn't she tell me I was a mental case and Elizabeth Grant that she should be confined in Ward L because she used a lip stick. Don't worry! Alberta has a yellow streak. She always backs down if you jam her hard enough. We found that out!"

This was true. All the probationers with three exceptions had been heavily "called" by Miss Alberta.

A few weeks before the probationary period closed when the class met one morning there was a drawing pinned on the wall. There were two figures in it—one an obvious caricature of the Instructress—the other of a very beautiful young girl, that might have been meant for Chickie or for any pretty student. The first picture had a human face, but the body of an animal reared on its haunches. In the front claws was a bottle of vitrol.

Underneath was written: "Beauty and the Beast. . . . She'd like to do it, wouldn't she—"

There were two or three insulting phrases added. Miss Alberta turned white as chalk. She went down the aisles and collected notebooks. She said: "No one but a probationer would stoop to this. I shall find the culprit. Such a person isn't fit to remain here a day. And she won't."

The White Cap

A bright cord of excitement drew sharp and very tight about the room. Eyes were shiny with expectancy. Miss Alberta taking the note books in a hostile, injured way, stalked to the door.

The moment she was gone, a quick, deep breath, then a pleased buzz of questions went humming eagerly: "Now; Who did it? Well, I didn't! Did you? I should say not!"

Inquiring, half accusing looks darted vividly, but no one was weighted with the gravity of the offence until Sophie Cates said: "Somebody did it—that's sure; Somebody's due to get it in the neck. I'd hate to lose my cap for it."

Phyllis walking out with Chickie whispered: "The drawing looked like you."

"I know it."

"I wonder why—"

But nothing happened. The next day after her class, Miss Alberta said: "Will Miss Downs and Miss Bryce please remain?"

There were two notebooks on the desk. The instructress said: "One of you is responsible. Which is it?"

"Well, not I!" Myrtle folded her arms in a slow, insolent manner: "Not I!"

Chickie's anger mounted so swiftly, so hotly, she was speechless.

Miss Alberta said: "Is this your notebook, Miss Downs?"

"Yes—"

"And is this your writing?"

"What about this lecture? It's in a different writing." This was a lecture Chickie had copied for Myrtle. "Who's writing is it?"

Myrtle shrugged. "Somebody copied it for me. I don't remember—"

She picked up the other book. "Is this yours, Miss Bryce?"

"Yes."

"And your writing?"

"Yes, Miss Alberta, that's my writing and the writing in Miss Down's notebook is mine and I have many other samples of my writing if you wish to see them—"

Was Very Pale

Miss Alberta was very pale. "Do you admit making that drawing?"

"I didn't make the drawing. I know nothing whatever of it. And further, I don't propose to be accused of it!"

"The person who wrote this lecture wrote those phrases. The writing is identical!"

Chickie said warmly. "You're mistaken!"

Miss Alberta's heavy lips trembled. "The person who did this hasn't the qualities that make for a nurse. You may go now."

Chickie went up to her ward, trembling. She brought water to the girl who had heart failure. The girl's lips were blue. Chickie thought sadly.

"I wonder if she's dying—" and everything was unimportant in the presence of this solemn finality. And it seemed so futile that anyone should care that another respect him; that any one should bother because a drawing made a joke of him. Life and death must have a great thing laughing at the little bumptious atoms taking themselves so seriously—then presently all quiet; all utterly defenseless—all without future but a grave.

At the Desk

That afternoon Myrtle was called to the office. With mysterious efficiency the news traveled. An hour later Chickie was called.

She had not been in the office since the day she came to make her inquiries. The day Miss Simonds had filled her with such a trembling fervor; had set the new life open with such a ringing call to the strength and all the beauty she could offer.

Miss Simonds was sitting at a desk. She was big boned and capable. Now as the first time there was a measured tolerance in her frank eyes. She said quietly, "A very cruel and unwomanly thing has been done, Miss Bryce—"

Without waiting for the sentence to finish, Chickie broke in hotly, "I didn't do it!"

"Let me speak, Miss Bryce."

WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle

EACH of us managed a smile as it flashed across my mind that ode an hour before when I'm content to wait—

To . . . him at . . . a glance—

Well, then, I want to Marmaduke Hill convinced that Ruth Gregory was all set on. I thought she couldn't stand on her own. I had an idea that it was dragging her pride and maybe her heart in the dust to think that Jim could march off about his own affairs in the midst of her work on the statue. I thought she had come to depend on Jim—and I even went so far as to feel that if you weren't riding straight into tragedy Ruth was. Am I going too far, Anne?"

"You are being very honest and very brave," I said.

"Am I hurting you?"

"You are dragging things out from the cobwebby, dark attic in to the light of day." I answered grimly. "If they won't stand daylight, I had better know it now than later."

Betty set her lips into a firm line.

"I ran away when I found out I had to have my hand cut," she said. "I wasn't brave enough to face the pity and the kindness of my friends when I realized that my right hand was going to be scarred and probably crippled, too. You'd have faced that, wouldn't you?"

"I'll face anything now," I cried.

"I see it this way," Betty went on quietly. "If you thought Ruth Gregory had Jim's happiness in her hands—you'd let him go out of your life without a struggle, wouldn't you?"

"I'd have to," I agreed with all the control I could muster.

"But if you thought she was obsessed by her work, interested in Jim as a new conquest—passionately fond of power—rather than love, what would you do?"

"I don't know—" I murmured.

"I'll put it more clearly," said Betty. "If you thought Ruth Gregory was one of those women who delight in conquest and who lose interest the minutes they know they've won, aren't you still fond enough of Jim to save him from the disaster of loving a woman who is twice as much the hard-headed business woman that you are?"

"She's an artist," I blurted out, begging the question, but proving as I did it, that I was mulling over in my mind the meaning back of Betty's words.

"She's an artist—and you're one of those modern women who insist on working without economic necessity or some artistic talent to compel them," snulled Betty. "When a man like Jim gets through trimming up the facts, do you think either you or Ruth Gregory represents the type he'd have chosen to fall in love with if he'd been able to make up his own dream-princess?"

"No!" I answered ruefully, and as I said it I didn't know for which of us I was sorriest—Jim or Ruth Gregory or myself.

JUNKET FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY.

I THINK we are all agreed that milk is the best food we have, Herbert Hoover tells us "Give your children milk; a quart a day for every child if possible; a pint without fail. Plenty of milk will help you give all your children, both big and little, the chance for health they ought to have. Buy more milk and less meat and your family will be better fed."

There cannot be a better way of using milk for health, economy and delicious eating than by making junket desserts.

To eat milk in this way is better than to drink milk; it is taken more slowly, and is more nourishing.

In Perfect Form

For besides giving to milk a delicate, jelly-like consistency, junket is in itself the very substance which Nature provides for the perfect digestion of milk.

Thus everything that can be said of milk as a food means more when it's made into junket. This gives you milk in its perfect form, especially good for growing children.

The desserts that can be made "in a jiffy" with milk and junket powder are delicious and afford much variety. Frozen junket desserts—ice cream, sherbets, etc., are wonderfully nutritious, and easy to make. They are perfection of desserts, and that means they're all delightfully dainty—and highly nutritious. Be sure, however, that in making junket desserts not to overheat the milk nor stir too long after the junket powder or tablet has been added. As the dessert begins to settle or jelly in about a minute after the junket has been added to the milk agitating it after that is apt to spoil the setting of the milk and make the dessert watery.

A good junket dessert should be firm. I think it adds to the appetizing appearance and daintiness of junket desserts to color them with some of the pure liquid vegetable colorings that are used by the most particular cooks.

Charm in Color

There is so much charm in color both for grownups and little folks. If a cake has a rich colored layer or a tinted frosting, you always want a bigger piece, don't you? You know you refer a dainty slice of rainbow ice cream to a dish of plain cream any time. And in candy—it's the color that tempts you. I am especially fond of each of the following four colors, raspberry red, lemon yellow, orange gold and grape green.

Besides desserts, junket is excellent in invalid cookery and for making cottage cheese. Cottage cheese is one of the best tissue building, energy-supplying foods we have, and I would advise you to make it in small quantities frequently, using skim milk, and eat it fresh. Cottage cheese may be used with tomato, cucumber, green pepper, pimento, cress, lettuce or other crisp vegetables, and is excellent with pear salad or in a club sandwich.

Here is a good recipe:

COTTAGE CHEESE.

To 1 gallon, or less, of sweet skim milk, add ¾ of a cup of sour milk and stir as it is put in. Raise the temperature in hot water to barely lukewarm. Remove from heat and place where it is to remain until set. Add ¼ of a Junket tablet thoroughly dissolved in 1 tablespoon cold water; stir while adding. Cover with cloth and leave from 12 to 16 hours in even temperature, about 75 degrees F. There should be a slight whey on top, and when poured out the curd should cleave sharply. Drain through cotton cloth firmer than cheese cloth. When whey has been drained out, work 1 or 2 teaspoons salt into the cheese, according to taste. One and one-half to 2 pounds of cheese should be obtained from a gallon of milk. Any small amount of skim milk may be used for this with a tablespoon or more of good sour milk.

Here are a few hints for dainty junket combinations:

Raspberry junket with whipped cream—nut bread sandwiches.

Orange junket—green frosted cookies.

Chocolate junket with marshmallows in fruit juice—saltines.

Vanilla junket with chopped nuts—cinnamon toast.

Lemon junket with raspberry tinted whipped cream—angel food.

Coffee junket with marshmallow whip—Nabisco wafers.

Home Hints

Never let knife handles lie in water or they are liable to loosen. If made of bone they may be cemented with mucilage and salt, while celluloid handles and spots—

Cheese disagrees with many folk, but if served grated or cooked with some other food does not cause indigestion. It should not be served after a heavy meal.

One thing you should do because it is a great help in preventing colds and grippe—keep the feet dry. Accidents will happen, and if you get a little to the knees, run home and change.

For scalding small delicate pieces of china, washing powder, because it has been previously warmed in hot water, or even soaking, was carefully dropped on the joint will answer.

Better without sugar are prunes prepared as follows: Wash the fruit, cover with cold water, let stand all night, cook in same water, when tender remove the seeds, run through a fruit press or mash with potato masher, add a dash of salt, and sweeten to taste with agave. The flavor is much nicer than when sugar is used.

HOW TRAGEDIES MAY BE AVOIDED

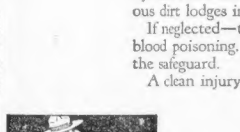
Summer's greatest danger

Health Authorities Everywhere Urge Quick Attention to Minor Injuries

THE skin has become soft and tender during the winter. Hard vacation play brings blisters, tiny scratches by the score and sores of a dozen causes. A bit of venomous dirt lodges in the broken skin.

If neglected—then that terrifying possibility—blood poisoning. Prompt antiseptic cleansing is the safeguard.

A clean injury rarely becomes infected.



Use Lifebuoy, the Health Soap

A prick from a fish hook; a cut from a tin can, nail or bit of broken shell; scratches from thorns or twigs; broken blisters—all should be bathed promptly and often with Lifebuoy. Don't take a chance by waiting. Don't take a chance by using any kind of soap. Every doctor will tell you that the tiniest break in the skin is really dangerous—an open door to infection.

The father of Lifebuoy with its mild, antiseptic health ingredient, penetrates into cuts and removes dirt and germs.

An added precaution that the wise will take is to apply a strong antiseptic, like iodine, too.

How to guard children

Children rarely pay much attention to little scratches and bruises. That is why habitual washing of hands, knees and feet with Lifebuoy is so necessary. Forgotten cuts and scratches are kept antiseptically clean and at the same time the skin benefits because Lifebuoy is so pure and gentle.

Lifebuoy is not for the medicine cabinet. It is for the wash basin and bath tub, for every-day family protection. You will like it better than any other soap after you have used it a week. Add a dozen of Lifebuoy to your grocery order today, and never be without it. Make this summer one of health-building—not of danger.

PRIZE POSTER PICKED FOR N. E. WEEK

HUB ARTIST'S DESIGN FOR N. E. POSTER

Boston Artist's Beautiful Design Will Be Sent Into Six States

A handsome $500 prize poster card, believed by the committee to be one of the most beautiful creations of its kind yet produced in this part of the country, will soon make its appearance in connection with New England Week, which is to be celebrated September 15 to 20.

Acting in the interest of the New England Week movement, the Boston Typothetae Board of Trade recently appropriated $500 for a poster. Three artists were selected to draw sketches, each being given $100 for his work.

Then, without a mark of identification of any kind, each every member of the committee entirely in the dark as to who the competitors were, the three designs were submitted to the New England Week Publicity Committee, of which Mark W. Burlingame of Boston is chairman.

PETERSON WINNER.

The committee unanimously selected a sketch drawn by Lester M. Peterson, who is the senior artist connected with the Southgate Press, at Nos. 82 to 89 Broad street, Boston. He was then presented $200 more for his work, making a total of $300 for his design.

Down the sides of the prize poster are the seals of the six New England states, with a list of the principal industries in each state, there being three seals on each side. In artistic lettering at the top of the body of the poster appears the subject of the movement.—"New England Week, Sept. 15th to 20th."

WILL GO EVERYWHERE.

The poster is to be printed in three colors and tints, and is to be furnished in two sizes, 11 by 14 inches and 14 by 22 inches, on heavy white cardboard. It is designed for use in railroad stations and trains, on newsstands, for window and counter display in stores and in all factories and jobbers' warehouses, salesrooms and offices.

The publicity committee for New England Week is also preparing a handsome sticker. This is printed on heavy gummed paper in orange and black, and is for use in correspondence and on packages, both before and after New England Week. The stickers, as well as the posters pictured in the design the official slogan.

Blotters are also to be a part of the publicity. These will be used by business firms for distribution with their correspondence and with all bills and statements sent out.

All of this material is being offered at practically its quantity cost, in strict keeping with the general policy of the New England Week movement, and all orders should be sent direct to the New England Publicity Committee, at Room 408, No. 80 Federal street, Boston, where the committee has its headquarters.

WON $500 PRIZE

Lester M. Peterson, senior artist of the Southgate Press, was awarded the honorarium offered by the committee in charge of New England Week for the best portrayal of the objects of the demonstration, to be held September 15-20.

VETERANS!

AMERICAN CAN SOLVE YOUR Bonus Problem: ASK US!

Questions concerning the world war bonus are answered daily in this column. If you are unable to call personally at the bonus information bureau at No. 92 Summer street, mail your inquiry.

Answers are based on the most authoritative information available. However, no full legal interpretation of the bonus act has been issued.

MRS. E. C. H., BOSTON.

Q.—How much am I entitled to receive as a bonus for service from September 5, 1917, to December 3, 1918, at Camp Upton, N. Y.?

A.—Service between the dates mentioned by you only would entitle you to $20.80 after deducting the first 60 days, if no overseas service was performed. You will receive this amount in cash after March 1, 1925.

O. H., ALLSTON.

Q.—I served in the Navy continuously for 20 years as chief petty officer and was on board the U. S. Sacramento on fishing patrol duty on the side up to July 1, 1917, when I left the service, returning January, 1919. What date is used for the computation of war service and what dates are counted for overseas service?

A.—Service afloat in home or foreign waters, but not on a receiving ship, is counted as overseas service, which calls for a credit of $1.25 a day in excess of 60 days. The length of your service entitles you to the maximum credit of $60, which will make the face value of your service certificate $125. This credit is given for service during the period from April 6, 1917, to July 2, 1919, with a maximum credit of $60 for all home service and $625 for both home and overseas service.

A. C., EAST BOSTON.

Q.—I served both home and overseas service from March 21, 1917, to April 29, 1920. I used the name of my stepfather and gave a different age and my birthplace as in the U. S. I am now married and have now resumed my proper name. Should I use the name I had when I was not a citizen when I enlisted. Am I entitled to the bonus?

A.—In the bonus application under the name you served during the war and in the space provided in section No. 18 headed "Remarks," state the circumstances under which you used the name of your stepfather and give the name by which you are now known. The two witnesses required to sign the application in question No. 29 should also state that they know you to be the person who served under the assumed name and that you are the same person who is known under the name you now bear.

Aliens and others who are not citizens of the U. S. during the period of your service are eligible for the bonus, but can receiving the benefits of the bonus law. Answering in the application requires any applicant to state whether or not he is a citizen of the United States, as a factor in determining your right to the bonus unless you were honorably discharged from service on account of alienage.

E. T. C., U. S. S. NEVADA.

Q.—Please advise me if World War veterans residing here now on duty in the army or navy are exempt from paying taxes in this state. I am a Massachusetts, which is my native state and where I own some property.

A.—Under the Massachusetts law veterans of the various wars of the United States who are legal residents, and who were honorably discharged or released from service, and who received injuries while in such service, are exempt from taxation to the amount of $2,000 if totally disabled, and veterans who received an injuries are exempt from taxation up to the value of $1000. This exemption applies to the widows of veterans. Service men who are now members of the military or naval forces of the U. S. are not exempt from taxation under the law.

F. O. O., Salem.

Q.—Will you please advise me whether a veteran not living with his wife can name his parents his beneficiaries?

A.—A veteran may name any person he desires as beneficiary to receive the face value of his service certificate in the event of his death before the expiration of 20 years.

A. B. W., Whitman.

Q.—I was called into service June 20, 1918, and served seven months overseas. If I am entitled to the bonus, how much will it amount to if I returned home January 24, 1919?

A.—You will be entitled to a credit of $1 a day for each day of home service, after the first 60 days and $1.25 a day for each day of overseas service. This credit when turned into an adjusted service certificate will have a face value of about $500.

SLAIN CONSUL'S BODY COMING BACK ON CRUISER

Washington, Aug. 20.—The cruiser Trenton which will bring the body of Major Robert Imbrie, the slain former American vice consul at Teheran, back to the United States, is expected to arrive at Bushire on the Persian gulf, today, according to official dispatches received at the State Department.

The body is being taken from Teheran to Basra from where it will be brought to Bushire in a small boat.

TAXPAYERS' COMPLAINTS BEING INVESTIGATED

Washington, Aug. 20.—Earl J. Davis, special counsel employed by the Senate committee authorized to investigate the Internal Revenue Bureau, is busy examining complaints filed with the committee by taxpayers, charging indiscrimination and unfair treatment.

HEALTH WORK SAVES LIVES OF BABIES

Mother's Milk for Ailing Tots Available at Brookline Unit

An especially vital piece of health work that is passing somewhat unnoticed, threatens to end because mothers of ailing babies do not know about it.

At No. 63 Haney street, Brookline, is a well-nurse directory that marks one of the few experiments of its kind in the country. In every big city babies each year die because they lack mother's milk, the only sustenance which they can retain and assimilate. Mother's milk, hard to get and costly, means the saving of their lives.

MILK PASTEURIZED.

Wet-nurses here are carefully selected on the basis of health and milk production. A social worker supervises the collection of milk from healthy mothers in clean homes. The milk is brought to the directory, pooled and pasteurized. It is sold to hospitals at 12 cents an ounce, or to private patients at 25 cents an ounce. The mother receives 7 cents an ounce for the milk.

Six to eight wet-nurses live at the directory with their babies and when a case requires the entire supply of one nurse, she remains at the directory at a charge of $20 a week. If she goes to the home of the sick baby, she gets $20 a week.

RIGID HEALTH TEST.

A rigid health test is required of each wet-nurse and there can be no danger of infection.

The directory, founded ten years ago by Dr. Fritz B. Talbot, makes frequent charitable donations, last year, alone, giving 10,000 ounces of milk to deserving hospital cases.

The trustees of the directory are now increasing their activities so that breast milk may be supplied to all sick infants in Greater Boston. Temporary funds are not lacking but the work cannot be carried on unless the demand for it is clearly shown.

In other cities the home collection of breast milk has met with success and there is sufficient need for it here to justify its continuance if more people know about it.

SETS 100 FIRES IN NEW YORK FOR 'THRILL'

Former Bank Clerk, With a Mania for Flames, Has Confessed to Crimes

New York, Aug. 20.—While firemen were answering alarms early today for three fires believed to have been of incendiary origin, George C. Gustow, a former bank clerk, now unemployed, was awaiting arraignment on a charge or arson.

Gustow according to Fire Marshal Brophy, confessed to setting more than 100 fires in apartments and loft building during the last few months. "Just for the trill."

One of today's fires believed to have been incendiary was in Webster Hall. The blaze was confined by the firemen to the basement after half an hours work. When the fire was out they found a piplo of oil-soaked rags in the basement. The other two fires were in adjoining houses in Greenwich street.

Herman Gustow, a lawyer, father of George Gustow, said that his son had been afflicted with a mania for watching fires since an attack of infantile paralysis left him partly crippled. After being arrested in 1915 for setin gfires on the upper West Side, he was sent to Bloomingdale Asylum and was later transferred to the Middletown State Asylum, from which he was discharged as cured in 1919.

Suspicion was directed toward Gustow yesterday at a fire in Amsterdam avenue, which was of incendiary origin. He appeared excited while watching the firemen fight the blaze.

DEATHS IN ENGLAND FEWEST IN HISTORY

London, Aug. 20. — England's death rate for 1923 is given as 11.6 per thousand, the lowest recorded in history, in a report by the Ministry of Health. The total deaths were 444,768, which figure is 42,000 fewer than in 1922, but represents forty per cent. under the age of fifty.

The infant mortality rate is the lowest recorded, dropping to 69.9 nine per thousand births in 1923, and representing a saving to the nation of 45,000 babies.

The birth rate does not give the same satisfaction. The number of births was 758,131, or about 22,000 fewer than in 1922.

CHARMING MAIDS IN 'MOST CHARMING' TEST

ENTERED IN AMERICAN'S TEST

Mrs. Carroll Boocock of The Riverway and, below, Miss Alice K. Hooke of Medford, two recent entries in the Boston American's charming girl tournament.

The quest for the MOST CHARMING girl in Greater Boston, now being conducted by the Boston American, will end next Saturday noon, and from the large number of entries being received the judges are going to have a big job to select the winner.

Entries continue to pour in from all sections of the city proper and also from surrounding cities and towns.

Every mail contains some delightful letter from a father praising the charm of his young daughter, from a young man telling of the alluring qualities of his sweetheart-candidate, or from some woman friend nominating a girl acquaintance whose bewitching ways have attracted unusual attention.

A delicately scented pink note from Cliftondale, written by Florence French of No. 152 Essex street, told of the fascination her friend, Miss Bowers, holds for all her acquaintances.

In nominating her, Miss French wrote:

"I am sure you will find that Miss Bowers is the ideal 'peach.' She certainly claims all definitions of 'charming.' She is five feet four and one-half inches tall, is graceful and very attractive. She has light brown hair that always looks lovely. Not only do I think so, but all her friends agree."

What a fine estimate of one friend by another!

Lovely eighteen-year-old Eltha Anstey of No. 71 Mountain street, North Woburn, was nominated by her father, who wrote "Daddy A." in the space for the name of the person nominating another.

How fine of a father to believe his daughter the most charming girl in the section in which she lives! Judging from Eltha's snapshot, sent in by dad, there are probably many others in North Woburn who agree with him.

CHARMING GIRL TOURNAMENT

Please enter the person named below in your tournament to determine who is the MOST CHARMING girl in Boston or vicinity. If chosen by the judges as "Miss Boston" she will accept the week's free trip to Atlantic City, N. J., with mother or other suitable chaperon and take part in the Atlantic City Pageant.

BROKER IS DRIVEN TO SUICIDE

Everingham Threatened to End Life if Business Remained Dull

Business depression is believed to be the cause of the suicide of Paul Everingham, president of the firm of Everingham and Young, insurance brokers, who died in an ambulance on the way to City Hospital after being found unconscious from gas in an apartment at No. 69 Audubon road.

Chester Bean, a friend of the broker who occupied the apartment, told the police that Everingham had been complaining of business conditions although he had not given any intimation of planning to end his life when Bean left him in the apartment to attend a ball game.

About two weeks ago, however, Bean said that Everingham in the presence of his wife and a party of friends had declared that if business did not pick up he would end his life "At high noon two weeks from now."

Mrs. Everingham is in a collapse at her home, No. 4 East Elm street, Wollaston.

Smelling gas the janitor of the Bean apartment building broke open a door and found Everingham sitting unconscious before a gas stove with a wet towel thrown over his head.

Medical Examiner Leary was investigating the suicide today.

At Everingham's office it was stated that no one knew that the broker had been involved in any serious business reverses.

N. Y. EXCHANGE FILLED WITH AMMONIA FUMES

New York, Aug. 29.—Ammonia fumes escaping from the air cooling system of the New York Stock Exchange at 8 o'clock this morning were carried through the buildings, but repairs were made before the opening of trading at 10 o'clock. Slight traces of the fumes were in evidence on the floor, but they did not interfere with trading, which was unusually active.

Still Loves Hubby

MRS. ADELE GOODMAN

"Daylight Bride" seeks to become reconciled with husband whom she had arrested on charge of non-support.

English 'Better as Husbands; Don't Spoil Wives'

New York, Aug. 29.—Englishmen make better husbands than Americans, because they "treat their wives as companions and not as American husbands treat theirs, as dolls, spoiling them with presents, furs and jewels," says Mary Borden, novelist.

She is the wife of General E. L. Spears, who has been a member of Parliament.

"English husbands don't nag," continued Mrs. Spears. "A wife to an Englishman is a pal and their life is more normal than over here."

Mrs. Spears, who is of the Borden family of Chicago, will join her mother in Camden, Me.

DAYLIGHT BRIDE' IN LOVE STILL

Now Seeks a Reconciliation With Husband Whom She Had Arrested

Mrs. Adele D. Goodman wants her "daylight husband" back.

"I still love him," declared the young former school teacher who proposes to sue her Boston mother-in-law for $100,000 in the belief that she is responsible for alienating the affections of young Goodman, but is willing to forgive him.

"Although my marriage with Marlin was a hasty affair, I have no regrets," the bride of a month continued in her husbandless apartment at No. 42 Lynda street.

FINED FOR NON-SUPPORT.

"And although I had him arrested for non-support two weeks after our marriage I still want him back."

Goodman was fined $50 by Judge Colen on the non-support charge but appealed the fine.

Meanwhile Mrs. Goodman gets fying glimpses of her wandering spouse as he lectures on a sightseeing bus preparatory to returning to Boston University.

"His mother is his law. He is 23 years old, but still his mother's pet and does what she directs. When, last Tuesday, the Lynn rabbi who married us invited us to his home on Hamilton street, Lynn, to try and make a conciliation, Martin brought his mother along and we couldn't accomplish anything."

SUES MOTHER-IN-LAW.

"What she has against me, I don't know. As a matter of fact my brother is married to her daughter. But for some reason she objects to me and has been a thorn to Martin and me since we were married."

When the rabbi failed to make a conciliation Mrs. Adele Goodman decided that her mother-in-law was the cause and through her attorney, George E. Gordon, filed a suit against her, alleging alienation of her son's affections.

After the couple had been married Goodman would leave his bride at midnight and return to the home of his mother, Mrs. Pabbie Goodman, at No. 16 Eaton street, a short distance away.

HALF-TIME HONEYMOON.

His visits to the half-time honeymoon apartment finally ceased, according to his bride, with the result that a suit for alienation of affections against the mother is pending.

Attachments of $100,000 on the real estate and bank accounts of the elder Mrs. Goodman were filed in the Suffolk Registry of Deeds in preparation of the suit.

Mrs. Adele Goodman is living alone, now, in the apartment, 42 Lynda street, West End. It is close to the home of her mother-in-law.

She is a bride of only little more than a month. On June 28, Adele says, they were married, but it was all kept a close secret. Martin, the bride says, visited her every night. But at midnight he hurried to his home, for his mother had picked out another girl as her choice for his wife.

WITH HER BY DAY.

"I came to Boston to act as maid of honor at a wedding," the bride told last night. "I met Martin. We fell in love at first sight.

"He begged me to marry him, but I asked him to postpone it until he had finished his education. Finally I yielded to his persuasions. We were secretly married by Rabbi Mervit of Lynn.

BEES STING MAN AND HORSE, BOTH IN PERIL

Chester, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Edward F. Green, who with his team of horses, was attacked by a colony of bees when his mowing machine struck a hive, may recover, although physicians stated there was poison enough in his body to cause his death.

A veterinary said one of the horses had become deranged and probably would die.

The angered bee colony covered the bodies of the man and animals with stings.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON WOMEN'S BEST AGE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

BALZAC is supposed to have said that the dangerous age of a woman is thirty-five. Just exactly what he means by dangerous we do not know, but there is no doubt that a woman is at her best around thirty-five. Before that time she is too cock-sure. She knows too much of life, also too little.

The loss of her ideals is still a surprise to her, and means too much, and her experience may have made her a little bitter.

Beyond the age of thirty-five a woman is apt to get matronly.

The ideal age of a woman, therefore, is about thirty-five. Very many women who have had little charm as young girls have suddenly become the most delightful persons in early middle age. They have learned to understand men by that time and expect less of life than younger women. They usually dress very well and are easily pleased.

They are not so temperamental nor so easily disappointed. They understand that they can be happy once in a while without being happy all the time.

About thirty-five a woman is almost always an admirable hostess; she has traveled, she has read and she has met people and, therefore, she makes an excellent companion. She stimulates a man to his best, but she is also a rest to him and has come to find out that busy men seek from women the benediction of rest perhaps more than any other quality.

She is not so conscious of her youth and hence has a becoming humility.

Women of every age can be charming, the old as well as the young, but a woman is at her best when she has passed her first youth and not yet entered upon old age, as far as men are concerned.

Many women who in their youth were unattractive, as they near forty become charming, agreeable and attractive, so that their companionship is appreciated by all their friends as it was not before.

The young girl who is still pretty and fresh, holding the delicate bloom of childhood, may be a delightful companion for occasions, but she is difficult to please and is uncertain as to her moods and she is not so dependable as those of older years.

Love Has Fled

MRS. RAY COOLIDGE ATHERTON

An elopet at seventeen, former Back Bay society girl, Constance Coolidge, is reported divorced in China, where her husband is secretary of the U. S. legation.

EAST BOSTON TO GET HUGE DRYDOCK

Apparently abandoning a large parcel of land leased to it by the State for $1 a year, the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, Ltd., is planning to move its floating drydock from Fore River to East Boston.

The land, located on Hayward's Creek, together with another parcel deeded to the corporation, was leased under the terms of an agreement by which the Bethelehem organization agreed to build the drydock at its own expense.

The agreement was made on May 12, 1920, and according to officials of the Department of Public Utilities was the outgrowth of a wartime contract made March 28, 1917.

Under the terms of the agreement the Bethlehem corporation agreed to build the drydock at a cost not to exceed $50,000, with the necessary appurtenances, together with a bulkhead and culvert in and across the creek, and to do certain dredging.

The State for its part, deeded to the corporation a parcel of land containing 705,604.7 square feet, and leased in addition for $1 a year a large tract adjacent, the lease to run to 1937.

Leases dated March 28, 1917, and October 23, 1917, to the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, were terminated and the new lease entered into.

To hasten the work a contract was made May 10, 1920, with the Bay State Dredging Company for dredging the berth and channel leading to it. As the Massachusetts Oil Refining Company expected to benefit by the work it contributed $10,000 to the cost. The dredging was completed August 13, 1928, at a cost of $98,373.56, of which the State paid $61,291.56.

Work has been started in East Boston on the construction of a pier to which the drydock will be moored. It will adjoin Simpson's yard.

MANITOBA CROPS HARD HIT BY SEVERE STORMS

Winnipeg, Aug. 29.—Further widespread damage to Manitoba grain crops was indicated in reports today by havoc wrought by the storms which have swept the province the past two days.

Ten thousand acres in the Fox Warren district were reported to have suffered an 80 per cent. crop damage by a furious hail storm. In the Carberry district 4,000 acres were damaged, while a 35 per cent. loss was indicated over a considerable area near Brookdale.

FRIGHTENED, SLAYERS LEAVE $4,000 BEHIND

Bayonne, N. J., Aug. 29 (I.N.S.).—Three bandits today shot and killed Waclaw Zebrowski, fifty, treasurer of the White Eagle Building and Loan Association. They became so frightened at what they had done that they fled without taking the $4,000 their victim carried in his pockets.

Three suspects have confessed.

MRS. ATHERTON AND U.S. DIPLOMAT DIVORCED

Boston society was stirred by report that the romance of beautiful Constance Coolidge Atherton has been ended by divorce in China, where her husband is a secretary to the United States legation.

The elopement of Constance Coolidge, loveliest of Boston's sub-debs, with Ray Atherton in Paris in January, 1926, when she was only seventeen, came as a surprise to Boston society.

At the time of their marriage, Constance Coolidge and Ray Atherton were studying in Paris. Mrs. Atherton is the daughter of David H. Coolidge, a landscape artist, who hosts his home at the Hotel Somerset. Atherton is the son of Mrs. George Atherton of No. 222 Marlboro street.

Mrs. Atherton has long been regarded as one of America's most beautiful society matrons. So striking was her beauty that John Singer Sargent requested the privilege of painting her portrait.

The portrait of the brunette beauty, wearing a gown of gold, is one of the show pieces of the Chicago Art Institute. Portraits of Mrs. Atherton also have been painted by Mrs. Robert McGann and by Lawton Parker.

Two years ago Mrs. Atherton, while watching a battle between Chinese troops outside the walls of Pekin became separated from her party, found the gates of the city closed and herself directly in the line of fire of the combatants.

She was not missed until her friends had reached safety behind the walls. An alarm was raised and guards from the American, English and French legations sallied forth to her rescue.

SPEAKER AND BOONE HAVING MERRY BATTLE OF BASE HITS

SPOKE CAN STILL SWAT THE BALL

The Red Sox, apparently starting another of their spasmodic attempts to get far enough out of the cellar to stay that way, opened an engagement with the Cleveland Indians today. They play the Tris Speakers for the remainder of the week, and really have a great future immediately in front of them.

The Indians, in fifth place, are only three games in front of the Sox. Wherefore, it is evident that by cleaning up the series, the Mates could advance in the race. The White Sox, in sixth, are staggering terribly, and the Reds shouldn't find it tough to sweep past them.

FAR FROM SLIPPING.

Manager Tris, who still can smile, despite his troubles, has had a hard year from the start. He hasn't much left to try for this season, except a shot with the leading batters himself. Tris has only been in the big game 14 years, so that should be easy for him. His mark today is .342, not at all bad for a young chap.

He's having a exact battle of averages with Ira Boone, who holds a one point advantage at this writing.

He is hitting like he did in the Spring, and is carrying the rest of the club above with him. Ed Leslie Brown, incidentally shooting a big hole in that club's pennant chances.

Wrecking the leaders is about all the fun the Fenway Faithful have left in this campaign.

FOUR SCORE PLAYERS AFTER TILDEN'S TITLE

New York, Aug. 20.—An army of eighty-two odd players, representing 2 ven...ture nations is the tim eight nations will compete in the national singles championship held by William T. Tilden in the tournament starting next Monday at Forest Hills. The effort Tilden will be up today by the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

Besides the pick of American stars, headed by Tilden, William M. Johnston, R. Norris Williams, Vincent Richards, Francis T. Hunter, Herbert Sweetzer and the Kinsey brothers, seven foreign countries will be represented. These nations are Australia, with the formidable pair, Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood; Spain, with an outstanding star in Manuel Alonso; France, with Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra, the wimbledon champion; China, Japan, Mexico and Canada.

GIBBONS PHILOSOPHICAL ABOUT MISSING $35,000

New York, Aug. 20.—Universally-Tommy Gibbons, St. Paul boxing star, arrived on the Olympic from London, where he fought and knocked out Jack Bloomfield a fortnight ago. The purse, Bloomfield's managers claim, was $50,000, said Gibbons, in regard to the $15,000 he received instead of the $50,000 he was to get. "But I didn't stop to think it over long enough. Lawyers will see what can be done about the other $35,000."

ST. PAUL YOUTH OUT TO DEFEAT LEONARD

The lightweight division for 1924 will this season showed many promising kids, but has been boiled down to where followers of the ring are now wondering, "Is there any lightweight now living who will ever be able to beat Benny Leonard?"

Vincent Richards, 17-year-old Kansas Barnstein, they say, is too small for the champion.

Pal Moran eliminated Charley White, Leonard recently decisively defeated Moran, which practically settles all Eastern lightweights as lightweight contenders.

In boxing history we find that every so many years a sensation is uncovered in each division. A kid that stands out in a blaze of color and in such a commanding position that they dominate the sport. John L. Sullivan was such a type, then came Fitzsimmons and Terry McGovern about the same time. Then came Stanley Ketchel, who forced himself through sheer ability with one trail-blazing agents into the world's championship, and now Jack Dempsey, possibly the most sensational of the lot, holds forth.

While John L., Fitz and Dempsey extended over considerable years, Ketchel and McGovern rose to the pinnacle of success and dropped out almost as quickly.

Back in St. Paul at the present time there is a real lightweight fighting contender—a fighter that bears all the earmarks of the great all-around fighting machine seen in the lightweight division since Bonny Leonard won the title from Freddy Welsh back in 1916.

Of all the above named artists, in action his style is probably most similar to Terrible Terry McGovern when the Brooklyn Cyclone was sweeping the world's greatest bantams, feathers and lightweights down at will.

Johnny O'Donnell, when the gong clangs, becomes the personification of a fighting machine. Lefty Jim into the enemy with both hands going, dealing out heart-breaking blows with either hand whenever the opportunity presents itself, and if the openings don't appear rapidly he makes them.

The 24-year-old lad has fought and beat light-weights, welterweights and middleweights. He decisively defeated the Redmond Flirt Ballyfore, Pepper Martin and Archie Walker in California last Winter, and finished the season with a win over the Rising Sun welterweight champion, Billy Wells in a great fight. O'Donnell was out weighed 12½ pounds.

Duxbury, Aug. 19.—Duxbury defeated Plymouth today at golf, 10-2, and thereby won the championship of the South Shore League.

H. S. Pratt and W. S. Shaw beat G. B. Wood and Wadsworth.

R. Peaso and D. Barnum beat Mawway and Boutin.

EPINARD TO RACE AT LAUREL TRACK

Saratoga, Aug. 20.—Epinard apparently is going to make something of an American campaign this coming Fall. Hugh Ward has nominated him for the $25,000 Washington handicap, a gallop of one mile and a quarter for three-year-olds and over, to be run at Laurel in October, and the $10,000 Laurel, a weight for age dash of one mile for horses of all ages.

The French horse gallops half a mile around the far turn of the main course this morning in 49 seconds. He did not appear to relish running around a turn. Such a game is new to him. Leigh figures that he will do better as he becomes used to it.

GILMAN IS WINNER OF MAINE OPEN TITLE

Saco, Me., Aug. 20.—The Maine championship tournament for professionals and amateurs of the State, in progress here for two days, closed with Frank Gilman as the open champion of Maine. He turned in a card of 313 for the two days, Alex Chisholm of Portland was second, with 316. Among the amateurs, Fernald White, eighteen, Kennebunk High School, played a wonderful game and won a trophy, Hiram Ridder, Jr., of Poland Spring, at 322. They will play off the title later.

BERLENBACH BEGINS WORK FOR STRIBLING

New York, Aug. 20.—"Young" Stribling has decided to join the training at Saratoga Springs and will open up there until a week from today. The "Southern Tornado" is matched to fight Paul Berlenbach at the Velodrome on the 27th and is going to be at his best for this encounter. Stribling has seen Berlenbach fight several times and predicts he will win in a canter.

FAST FIELD IN REVERE BIKE RACE TONIGHT

Manager Nat Butler of the Revere cycle track has arranged a well balanced card of racing for tonight. Foremost on the program is the 40-mile team paced race.

Not mixed Gustav Canay, Clarence Carman and Vincent Madonna as team leaders, and told them to select their own partners from a list of riders he submitted. Canay's choice was a fellow Frenchman, Marcel Godivier, Carman named Lucy Gaffney as his partner. Al Gerard, the Sengalese rider, who has been performing with great success on New York, New Jersey and Philadelphia tracks, was Madonna's assertion.

A few years ago these same teams took part in a team race at Revere that developed into one of the greatest races in the history of the Revere track. It will be remembered that Canay and over Madonna by a finish that had the fans up out of their seats. The fans are looking for a similar affair Wednesday.

Another interesting listed on the three-hour tandem contest. Bobby Walthour and Frank Degnan, with Alfred Goullet and Percy Lamplough, will have another chance to display their abilities on the two-wheeled machines. Walthour and McKenzie brothers and the Stock holm-Fischer combination. The three teams will start from scratch. Points will determine the winner.

CALZA IS TO RETURN TO U. S. IN FALL

By JACK CONWAY

GEORGE CALZA, Italian heavyweight wrestler, will return to America in the Fall, according to John Pius of this city who recently arrived home after a trip to Italy.

"I met Calza in Trieste where he is physical director of a gym," declared Pius. "George is fat and looks better than he was when last in America. He appears much stronger.

"Calza is anxious to return to the United States and wrestle the best there is in the world. He explained to me that the reason he refused to meet Stanley Stasiuk in Boston was on account of not being in proper condition. Calza had been wrestling three or four times a week and was completely exhausted. He didn't wish to enter a ring with Stasiuk under these conditions.

"When Calza returns to America the first man he wishes to meet is Stasiuk. If he can defeat the Polish champion he will then be prepared to tackle Strangler Lewis in a finish for the world's championship. Calm requests to me that the United States early in October."

TONY JULIAN, Brockton lightweight, will complete his tremendous training today for his ten-round bout with Archie Walker at Walkover Park, Brockton, on Friday night. Charley Rose, Julian's manager will only engage in a light work today, Julian reports he is in better condition than he has been in more than a year. Since going under the management of Manager Rose, Julian has done very little boxing. Naturally a strong, aggressive fighter, Julian has only lacked proper training to bring him out front in the fistic parade. In his last start Julian disposed of Sailor Byron.

WALKER, a youngster in the fistic racket, rates with the leading lightweights in this city. He is one of those aggressive, two-fisted fighters who please. He will probably go to the front a slight favorite over Julian.

JACK SHARKEY, sensational Roxbury heavyweight, will show his remarkable fighting qualities at the Bangor Fair tonight. He is billed to box six rounds with young Jack Dempsey of Lynn. Sharkey, always in the best of condition, should not have much trouble in outpointing the local youngster. Jack will not try to put over a knockout for fear of injuring his hands.

MATCHMAKER Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A. is trying to secure a suitable opponent for Sharkey for a show to be staged in this city on either August 29 or early in September. Goodwin is anxious to stage a fistic affair in honor of the big fellows who figure to give Sharkey an even tussle. The promoter of Floyd Johnson, Homer Smith and Al Roberts would not even get a workout from some of the young men who are hurling challenges at him.

THE postponement of the hearing on the perjury charges against Luis Firpo until after his match with Harry Wills, eliminates what little danger there was of the chief heavyweight bout of the season being called off. Tex Rickard has engaged counsel for Firpo. This means that the cultured gentlemen who failed to prevent Firpo and Wills from swapping blows will be disappointed.

If the drive against Firpo is being made in good faith, all Americans would endorse it. As the motives of those back of the fight to deport Firpo are not above suspicion, the Federal Court Commissioner who postponed the hearing of Firpo's case is to be commended. He would be doing the South American a grave injustice to take him away from his training camp a few weeks before an important bout to answer charges which may not be proved in court.

THE proper place to try out charges such as have been made against Firpo are in court, where the defendant, as well as the prosecution, have an opportunity to be heard. We shall suspend our opinion on the Firpo case until after this has been done. One grave trouble in America today is that half-witted individuals are permitted to blacken the reputations of respectable persons by making charges which they are unable to prove when called upon to tell their story in open court. The tragic part of this is that the public is quite unable to remember the false charges that are made against a person than they are the vindication when hearings are face with his accuser in court.

JOHNNY BUCKLEY has received an offer for Jack Sharkey to meet the best available heavyweight in a show to be staged by the Queensboro Club of Brooklyn on next Monday night.

IF you have witnessed any of the brilliant tennis matches at the Longwood Cricket Club this week you will probably agree with our statement to the effect that tennis is a more strenuous game than boxing. As for golf, watch Helen Wills, the girl with the poker face. This sensational young tennis player is much calmer under fire than our golf men like Jack Dempsey and Benny Leonard.

Down through the centuries women have watched, waited and suffered without making any fuss about it. This may explain Helen Wills' poker face. This talented young lady, who doesn't drink cocktails, smoke cigarettes or engage in any of the wild activities of the "social" lights of tennis, is expressionless during her matches. She smiles only after her opponent has congratulated her upon her victory. This happens after each of her matches as the young Californian always wins.

GIDDY girls can learn a lesson by studying how Miss Wills has become the greatest tennis player in the world by right living. And in particular, by listening to the words of counsel and advice of her mother who is always by her side. When a girl, or a boy, refuses the advice of their mother they usually wind up on the road that leads to oblivion.

North Dorchester to Battle Saxony Mills Tonight

The North Dorchester B. B. C. will have the Saxons Mills as their opponents this evening at the Dorchester Town Field, Fields corner.

This should be a good attraction for the fans of Dorchester. Saxony has defeated such teams as Lockhaven, A. A. and Dorchester Town team has been defeated but four times this season. Teams desiring a good attraction for Saturday or Sunday games should get in touch with H. F. Meandler, tel. Dorchester 1205-J.

HARRY GREB TO CLASH WITH TUNNEY

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—Gene Tunney, American light-heavyweight champion, and Harry Greb, middleweight champion, will be matched to meet in a ten-round bout at the Olympic Arena here early in September if Greb's suspension in Massachusetts can be lifted, M. J. Hinkel, promoter, announced today.

Harry Greb, world's middleweight champion, was suspended last April by Massachusetts boxing authorities after an unsatisfactory showing in a fight with Kid Norfolk, negro pugilist. This suspension was also made effective in New York and for a six months' period, although by special permission Greb was allowed to defend his title against Ted Moore in a charity bout in New York in June.

The 23-year-old champion has fought and beat light-weights, welterweights and middleweights. He decisively defeated the Redmond Flirt Ballyfore, Pepper Martin and Archie Walker in California last Winter, and finished the season with a win over the Rising Sun welterweight champion, Billy Wells in a great fight. O'Donnell was out weighed 12½ pounds.

Britton Trailing Greb

Billy Britton, Kansas cyclone, who is under the management of Eddie Mead and Johnny Cox, will be at the ringside of the Harry Greb-Tiger Flowers battle at Fremont, O., Thursday night. Britton will challenge the winner.

Semi-Pros-Amateurs

(Replies to Challenges Will Be Taken Care of If Addressed to Boston American Sporting Department.)

THE Shawmut A. C. of Revere with a record of twelve straight wins, would like to arrange baseball games with any of the 14-16-year-old teams in New England.

Among the players who are showing plenty of class are Moriarty and Miller, former stars on the Revere A. S. and Willard Hunter. For Twilight or Sunday games call John Walsh, Main 5041—between 3 and 4.

The St. Josephs of Lynn wish to book some good attraction at Memorial Park, Lynn, for next Saturday for a return game away. The Saints have been playing twenty-eight out of thirty-two games this year. Tonight, on the same grounds, the St. Joes will play Stoneham Town team. This game will start at 6:15. Either O'Brien or Jenkins will be on the mound for the St. Joes, with Wall catching either of these men.

TOURISTS LIKE I PLAY SAFE CAMPAIGN

Tourists, in New England for the summer, are enthusiastically carrying Boston American I PLAY SAFE emblems and the I PLAY SAFE CLUB idea back to Western States.

Many of them have written to the American, lauding the club. Scores of them have signed the "play safe" pledge and joined the club, the purpose of which is to reduce motor accidents by co-operation for safety among all drivers.

"I would like to see your plan in a nutshell," writes W. W. Taylor of Pine Bluff, Arkansas, who is Summering at Kennebunkport, Me.

"The observance of the rules laid down in your pledge means the saving of scores of lives, not to mention the financial saving involved. The plan would mean much to the State of Arkansas, and I believe our citizens will readily adopt it."

PRAISED BY VISITORS.

Mrs. Earl W. Aberg of Oklahoma writes: "We have been in your city for the Summer and are now leaving for the West. We like your I PLAY SAFE CLUB idea, and want to carry an emblem West with us."

Clayton V. Blakemore and A. L. Camson of Detroit, are others who write to commend the plan, enclosing their pledges to obey the rules of the highways.

A New England tourist in the West who praises the I PLAY SAFE idea points out that in her opinion this section of the country is lagging behind the West in one respect. This is in the adjustment of headlights. The writer is Miss Celia D. Raphael of Roxbury, who asks for stricter enforcement of the State headlights law.

ENDORSES CAMPAIGN.

Hyde Park Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, has endorsed the safety campaign through its secretary, Joseph Marcotte. The Municipal Light Department of the town of Holden has supplied emblems for the department's trucks and automobiles.

The I PLAY SAFE 1924 drivers' club is a voluntary organization designed to reduce motor casualties. The emblem of the club is the I PLAY SAFE insignia for windshields, furnished free to all who sign the pledge of safety, mailed on receipt of a two-cent stamp.

Among those who have signed the pledge are:

STAR PAYS BET LOST TO LAURA

Members of "Little Jessie James" company gathered in front of the box office of Tremont Temple while Allen Kearns buys seats for the entire company to witness "Abraham Lincoln" film as a result of a bet he lost with Laura Hamilton (Little Jessie James) on the score of the White Sox-Red Sox double-header last Thursday. Left to right are Allen Kearns, Laura Hamilton, Miriam Hopkins, Gladys Baxter, Evan Valentine, Madeleine Grey, John Hundley, Clara Thropp, Ann Kelly, Al Raymond, Blanche O'Brien, Frances Upton, Pauline Schaeffer, and the entire "James Boys" (Paul Whiteman's Band) and staff of "Little Jessie James."

Allen Kearns of the "Little Jessie James" company at the Wilbur Theatre received the most enthusiastic support from a company that he has ever enjoyed since he began his stage career.

This support, audible and enthusiastic, was at the box office of Tremont Temple, where Mr. Kearns appeared in a brief skit entitled "Losing a Bet and Paying It."

Behind Mr. Kearns were Laura Hamilton, Miriam Hopkins, Madeleine Grey, Gladys Baxter John Hundley, Al. Raymond, Clara Thropp, Evan Valentine, John Mulligan, George Spelvin, Blanche O'Brien, Frances Upton, the James Boys (a Paul Whiteman Band), the James Girls, stage hands and even the wardrobe mistress and her staff.

Mr. Kearns and Miss Hamilton had a bet on the double-header last Thursday, between the White Sox and the Red Sox. Miss Hamilton picking the Red Sox. The bet was a treat for the company. Miss Hamilton won the double-header, and she picked a trip to Tremont Temple to see "Abraham Lincoln."

"It's the best bet I ever won," countered Miss Hamilton.

"It is the best bet I ever lost," said Mr. Kearns at the conclusion of the show.

"I'm honestly glad I lost that bet. The show was worth it," added Mr. Kearns. "A magnificent picture, a thriller from the start to the finish."

Miss Hamilton was equally enthusiastic, as were others of the company.

"I love a great thriller and a romance. This picture is an absolutely perfect blending of the two. I don't see how it could be better done. It was a real treat for all of us," Miss Hamilton declared.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

WHEN you light a match you are performing a miracle that would have astounded all the world's great men, including Washington and Napoleon and anybody else who lived more than a hundred years ago.

Matches are the cheapest miracle in the world. You can buy scores of them for a cent, yet the Old World rolled along until the nineteenth century was a quarter over before anybody discovered an easy way to light a fire.

In France, England, Germany and Austria scientists began experimenting with chemical ingredients to produce a flame about 1805. M. Chancel, a college professor in Paris, was the first to light a wooden splinter. He got his results from a bottle containing asbestos saturated with a strong solution of sulphuric acid, to which a bunch of wood with a coating on the end of sulphur, chlorate of potash and sugar was gingerly dipped.

About the same time an unknown inventor produced a splinter with a phosphorus head, which broke into a flame when rubbed, but which was also likely to burn off the fingers holding the match.

Inventors in other lands were producing curious firesticks, based on the scratch principle, but it was not until 1827, that the first practical friction matches came into being. They were invented by John Walker, a druggist in Stockton-on-Tees, Eng. He called them "Congreves," after Sir John Congreve, who had previously invented a rocket.

There was no phosphorus in the Walker matches, the chemicals being sulphide of antimony, chlorate of potash and gum over a coating of sulphur.

Preschel of Vienna produced the first practical phosphorus matches, which lighted much more easily than the Johnny Walkers. On the other hand, phosphorus was a deadly poison, which caused many deaths in the match factories and among purchasers of the matches.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

The Boston American will pay $1 for published smart sayings. Address "Smart Sayings," Boston American.

On a vacation trip camping this Summer I found it hard to get to the store and get food. I said: "I wish I had a phone here." My son, four years old, said, "Why didn't you bring it with you, mamma?" MRS. M. GOODRICH, 15 Summer street, Quincy.

THE BEST JOKE I EVER HEARD

The Boston American will pay $1 for "Best Joke" published. Address "Best Joke," Boston American.

"I can't keep visitors from coming up," said the office boy. "They don't believe me when I say you're out."

"Well, put them off somehow," said the boss. "Whatever they say, just tell them That's what they all say."

That afternoon a lady with hard features and acrid expression demanded to see the boss.

"Impossible," said William.

"But I'm his wife," she persisted.

"That's what they all say," said the boy.

TODAY

find four men more typical of the United States and its work than Coolidge, Edison, Ford and Firestone. Which name of the four will live longest in history? What name among us, now unknown to the world, will outlive them all?

CONSERVATIVE, "respectable," self-approving Americans think that nothing good in any radicalism, might ask themselves, "What is it we praise, over what do we rejoice, as we look for good times because of the German-English-French agreement?"

WHAT THEY are praising is an agreement arrived at by the Socialist Premier of France, Herriot, the Socialist-Labor Premier of England, MacDonald, and the Socialist-Labor government of Germany.

WHEN MacDONALD, the Socialist-Labor Prime Minister, at the signing of the new industrial peace, took the hand of the German representative, Marx, and put it in that of the French-man, Herriot, that was a big step toward real peace.

AMERICANS who think that there is no real virtue or intelligence outside of a fat pocketbook should revise their views.

THE TIME is coming in this country—not for many years—but IT IS coming, when those that control by the power of the pocketbook will have to accept changes gracefully, or accept them against their will in ways that they won't like. The wise British accept changes as they come, and life goes smoothly.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner.

ARE you afflicted with superfluous hairs? I have had many letters asking how to remove them from the face without leaving scars.

Dr. Mahoney

To keep the hairs from appearing it is necessary to first destroy deep-seated follicles from which they grow.

A depilatory is something that will chemically dissolve the hair, but you can see that to destroy the hair thoroughly it must destroy it down deep in the skin, and that to prevent the regrowth of the hair it must destroy not only the hair but the hair follicle.

When a depilatory such as barium sulphide—a rank poison—destroys hair below the surface, it takes out the plug from the orifice of the follicle and lets in germs that abound in all sorts of greases and cause pimples.

The only way successfully to destroy a hair follicle is by the electrin needle. Unfortunately, however, certain persons—and no one can tell in advance who—have a tendency to the formation of excessive scars, called keloid, at every seat of a burn or other injury.

That's the reason these warty-looking scars appear in many cases following the burn from the electrin needle, and why every person who submits to such treatment must assume all risks as to consequences.

The notion is abroad that to shave these "superfluous" hairs is to cause them to grow more vigorously and to multiply.

This is all nonsense.

My advice to all victims of superfluous hairs is to shave every morning like a real gentleman.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Where would I go to verify the diagnosis "Neuritis"? I have severe pains in legs and sometimes in shoulders which I think may be due to rheumatism. M. A. A., Cohasset.

I would suggest that you consult the out-patient department of the Massachusetts General Hospital, First street, Boston, Out Patient Department.

I have appendicitis. It bothers me and then goes away again. Do you think I should have the appendix out? MRS. F. W., Boston.

I would be best for you to be guided wholly in this matter by the decision of your family physician or surgeon, who is more familiar with your physical condition and I would hesitate to advise you in this regard.

The Helping Hand

Young Girl, Sick and Alone

Helping Hand Editor:

I am a young girl of twenty alone in the world. Have been sick quite a while and unable to work. Will you please try and get me a dress, coat and shoes so I can get to work again. M. E. B.

Offers Baby Things

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a number of baby things, which I will mail to any mother you wish me to. MRS. T. I. S.

Many thanks for this welcome offer. Mrs. G. B. S., mother of six, expecting another visit from the stork, will greatly appreciate these things.

Clothes for Mrs. W. I. H.

Helping Hand Editor:

If you will send me the address of Mrs. W. I. H. I will send her some clothes. MRS. E.

Thank you. I am sending you the address of Mrs. W. I. H., whom I am sure will appreciate what you may do for her.

Suit and Skirt

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a gingham dress, white suit, white skirt, blouses and a few other articles that would fit a small-sized woman. Kindly send me the address of someone who can use same. C. M. D.

Thank you. Am sending you the address of M. E. B., who I believe is a worthy case.

School Clothes Given

Helping Hand Editor:

Will you kindly send me the address of "Mildred C." who wants clothes, to send to school with, as I have some I will send. D. H.

Thank you. I know "Mildred C" will be glad to receive your donation. Am sending her address.

Outfit for Woman

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a bundle containing clothing which I will be glad to send by parcel post if you will send me the name and address of some needy person. The contents consist of underwear, bloomers, two dresses, and a coat. They will fit a woman about 36 or 38.

MRS. L. E. J.

Thank you. I will send you the address of Mrs. L. M., who will very much appreciate what you wish to give.

Baby Carriage Offered

Helping Hand Editor:

I have a baby carriage or bassinet that I would like to give some one that could use them. They are not in wonderful condition, but would certainly help some poor child. I would like to hear from somebody around Dorchester so she could call. M. R.

Received $10 for C. L.

The Helping Hand Editor has received $10 for C. L., from a generous reader who modestly refrains from giving his name, as will be forwarded to this needy family.

FINANCE

—By George Wheeler Hinman—

At a time when financial propaganda confuses business reason and business hopes ignore financial realities, a few plain facts and principles are welcome in this country even though they are furnished to us by foreigners.

Such facts and principles regarding a nation's business and a nation's foreign loans are given by John Maynard Keynes in an address which he delivered in England and which is contained in newspapers just arriving in this country.

Not all foreign investments are good for business, contends Mr. Keynes. The idea that foreign trade and commerce follow foreign investment is entirely wrong. There are three sorts of such investments.

First, there are the enterprises started abroad and owned by the investors at home. Such for instance, would be the Ford factory in England and the many industrial plants which Americans own in Canada. These foreign investments are the safest and most profitable of all.

Second, there are foreign investments in enterprises managed by foreigners, notably public utilities, like railroads, etc. These investments are fair but not so safe and not so profitable. Why? because they are very liable to be shaken by hostile policies and revolutions. American holders of Central American Railway bonds or Chinese Railway securities can see this point.

Third, there are the loans to foreign governments. Just at this time, when loans to Europe are being promoted almost hysterically in the United States, Mr. Keynes' statement on this subject might well be printed in red letters a foot high.

"No investment has ever been made so foolish," he states, "as the loan of France to Russia, and, on a lesser scale, to the Balkans, Austria, Mexico and Brazil between 1900 and 1914. They represented a great proportion of the national savings of the country and nearly all has been lost.

"The investor has no remedy—none whatever—against default (that is, repudiation) on the arising of wars and revolutions or whenever the expenditure of further loans no longer exceeds the amount of interest payable on the old ones."

"Who can maintain that the indirect national advantages of such loans are great?" asks Mr. Keynes. "Many of which have been employed to wage wars and without which the wars could not have been carried on.

"In the future," he continues, apparently with the Dawes plan in mind, "the motives tending toward repudiation, partial or complete, may become much stronger than at present. Our difficulties on a grand style will then begin."

These words merit the attention of every American business man. Such a man may get the lesson by asking and answering a few questions the words suggest.

Have we had any experience with defaulters and repudiators of foreign government loans? Do not several European governments which owe us billions wish to default and repudiate today, and do they not say so? And if they had no hope of further loans by way of Berlin and German reparations—would they not say so still more decisively?

And if those governments were to default and repudiate in the future would we have any remedy this side of war? Or if we lend more in addition to those already at stake, have we any more assurance for the future than for the past?

(Ill. C. Forbes is en route for Europe, there to study on the spot the world problems associated with the Dawes plan. Mr. Forbes' impressive readjustment will mean for us will be told by him in this column when he resumes writing in September.)

U. S. STEEL UP TO FRESH TOP SINCE 1922

U. S. Steel advanced to a fresh high since 1922, along with several other issues, in trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

One book of 15,000 shares of General Motors changed hands at 15, up ¼. Buying was on a large scale, total sales in the first hour exceeding 240,000 shares, with a brisk demand for the tobaccos, equipments and motor accessories.

Rails were sluggish, with fresh weakness cropping out in some of the Van Sweringen issues, Nickel Plate dropping 2¾ and Chesapeake & Ohio 1.

American Water Works advanced 4¾ points and Mack Truck, General Electric, Consolidated Cigar preferred and White Motors moved up 3 points or more. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

Boston Stock Exchange list issues showed small price changes as a rule, with a mixed tone. United Drug was up 1. Boston & Maine rose around a point.

BROCKTON SHOE TRADE IS SHOWING ACTIVITY

Brockton shoe manufacturers are making up their orders for Fall delivery and in consequence business is showing a little more activity, W. L. Douglas shoe company, a leading interest in the Brockton district, is operating at 65 per cent. of capacity. The big plant has a rated capacity for 3,000,000 pairs of shoes a year.

In common with other shoe units in this section, volume of business for first half of the year was not up to the initial six months of 1923. Vice-President H. L. Tinkham says: "It is reasonable to feel that the next few months will bring a moderate improvement in the shoe industry. There appears to be a more optimistic sentiment and I hope it will materialize in more business. There is no change in the labor situation."

W. L. Douglas Shoe Company is now operating about 120 retail stores throughout the country. In addition it sells through agencies in virtually every city or town of any size in the country.

The following information is summarized by Mr. Frank L. Dame, President of the company, from his letter:

BUSINESS AND TERRITORY SERVED

The North American Company, organized in 1890, is one of the oldest, largest and most successful of public utility holding companies. Among the principal controlled operating subsidiaries are:

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Company,
Union Electric Light & Power Company (St. Louis, Mo.), and
The Milwaukee Electric Railway & Light Company.

The company also owns a substantial stock interest in The Detroit Edison Company.

Operating subsidiaries of the company have been conspicuously successful in the public utility field and have been notable for consistent growth in both volume of business and net earnings. The cities in which they operate are among the most important industrial centers in the United States and the territory served comprises an area of more than 11,000 square miles, with a population in excess of 3,600,000.

Income of subsidiary companies is derived principally from the distribution of electric current for power and light, more than 78% of the net income from operations in 1923 having come from this source. Total output of electric energy in 1923 showed an increase of more than 26% over the output of 1922. The growth of the subsidiary companies is further indicated by increase in their consolidated gross earnings from $18,364,656 for 1916 to $77,768,195 for the twelve months ended June 30, 1924. During the same period the balance of consolidated earnings before dividends on preferred stock of The North American Company, and after depreciation and all operating charges, increased from $2,260,961 to $8,833,543, or more than 290%.

EARNINGS

Consolidated earnings of The North American Company and its subsidiaries since January 1, 1916 have been as follows:

12 Months Ended December 31	Gross Earnings of Subsidiaries	Balance after Operating Expenses, Depreciation and Dividends on N. A. Preferred	Reserved for Depreciation	Balance Applicable to N. A. Preferred Dividends on N. A. Preferred
1916	$18,364,656	$3,735,809	$1,474,848	$2,260,961
1917	20,963,202	3,018,033	1,109,502	1,908,531
1918	24,792,880	2,549,864	1,059,895	1,489,969
1919	30,343,836	4,580,701	2,174,911	2,405,790
1920	39,611,162	5,396,288	2,484,155	2,912,133
1921	38,853,190	6,711,142	3,239,832	3,471,310
1922	55,234,492	11,303,731	5,209,882	6,093,849
1923	75,465,267	16,253,454	6,867,996	9,385,458
1924*	77,768,195	16,371,747	7,538,204	8,833,543

*12 months ended June 30, 1924.

Earnings of $8,833,543 before preferred dividends and after all operating charges including depreciation, during the twelve months ended June 30, 1924 as shown above, were in excess of 7½ times the actual dividend requirement on preferred stock outstanding during that period, and more than five times the annual dividend requirement on the total amount of preferred stock to be outstanding after this additional issue.

JUNIOR MARKET EQUITY $74,000,000

The North American Company itself has no funded debt. The $29,085,750 of preferred stock to be outstanding after this issue will be followed by common stock which, on the basis of present quotations, represents a market equity junior to the preferred stock of over $74,000,000. The par amount of common stock outstanding as of June 30, 1924 was $27,829,160.

Quarterly dividends have been paid continuously on the company's preferred stock since its issuance and on the common stock for a period of more than fifteen years, the present common dividend rate being 10% per annum payable in common stock at par.

The outstanding preferred and common stocks are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and application has been made to list this additional issue of Six Per Cent. Cumulative Preferred Stock.

We offer this $10,000,000 Preferred Stock, less amounts subscribed by stockholders, for delivery if, when and as issued and received by us, subject to approval of legal matters by our counsel.

Price $48 per Share. To yield 6¼%.

Further information is contained in our circular which may be had upon request.

THE DEAF HEAR

We have always impressed upon the minds of those afflicted with Catarrhal Head Noises, Discharging Ears, and all catarrhal diseases of the nose, throat and chest, that at this season, when nature is in its noblest mood and sunshine abundant, these diseases are relieved in a short time and can be cured at any other season of the year. Many who have suffered for years and have tried other treatments and failed have come to us for their health, and advise those who suffer from these troubles to investigate the Osmo-Chemic. Physicians by taking advantage of the following offer can test for themselves the wonderful power of the X-RAY TREATMENT in the comfort of their own office, accompanied by wonderful results. ATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASES.

No matter what your disease may be, remember that the Osmo-Chemic doctor gives

BOSTON AMERICAN

THE LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

"Hundreds of motorists would take the family out on vacation," the late J. W. Barber thought, "if it could be done at the cost of staying at home." So, he organized the National Recreation Club.

The motor cars in the United States number 15,000,000, of which probably 150,000 have taken part this year in "camping" tours. "Fifty per cent. of our tourists," one authority says, "have become gypsies!"

Co-Operative Club of Minute Men Aims to Reconcile Automobile Camper and Farmer

ALTHOUGH the number of automobiles on the highways of New England appears to be as large as the number of last year's tourists, reports come from the Summer hotels that business is not quite up to the average.

"Fewer Americans," one observer says, "thought they could afford to spend this year's vacation time at the resorts it has been their custom to visit."

There is, however, an inclination in some quarters to place the blame for a comparatively poor season on the broadening shoulders of the "automobile camper."

The camper suddenly has become an important personage. He is being written about in newspapers and magazines. Some admire him, envy him, welcome him. Others condemn him.

There is talk of "regulating" the camper by restrictive laws, of discouraging him, of greatly reducing his numbers.

The debate runs something like this:

"The motor camper is a vandal," declares one of his critics.

"We were out twenty-eight days this year," reports a happy camper. "We traveled three thousand miles. The whole thing cost us two hundred and forty dollars. Forty dollars apiece! Beat that, if you can."

"Ninety per cent. of the motor campers who make use of public camp sites," retorts his critic, "not only abuse the privilege but leave the camp in a condition offensive to a dog."

"You cannot imagine the relief it has been to be taken away from a pokey house," says a woman camper, "to say au revoir to kitchen range and washtub. And the children! I declare, they have made more progress in nature studies than they could have done in ten months of school."

But the critic will not be silenced.

"Fifty per cent. of our tourists have become gypsies!" he says.

"The motorcar camper destroys property, pollutes streams and leaves behind him conditions which breed disease. Many of them have no regard for the game laws. And another menace is the camper's disregard for the fire laws. Many forest fires are traceable to campers.

"And now the motorcar thief and the bootlegger have taken refuge in the army of campers, not to mention the gas grafter and the ride hooker. I hate to seem bitter, but——"

To meet the threatening situation which is thus developing, and which sooner or later might result in bitter clashes between the rapidly growing army of automobile campers and a powerful element in the community which appears to be growing increasingly hostile towards them, an organization of Minute Men has come into existence whose aim will be to bring the parties together and have them shake hands.

Like so many other good ideas, this one was born in New England.

It is called the National Recreation Club.

It is NOT conducted for profit.

It plans to maintain an automobile camp site every 25 miles on all automobile trunk lines.

The objects of the Club are the protection and conservation of forests, flowers and birds; to promote recreation in all forms, particularly out of doors; and to establish and maintain automobile camping grounds, club houses, recreation centers and bird sanctuaries throughout the country.

"I hereby apply for membership in the National Recreation Club," so runs the form, "and I pledge myself, so long as I remain a member of the Club, to PRESERVE WHATEVER IS BEAUTIFUL IN NATURE AND TO RESPECT PRIVATE PROPERTY."

If all the campers would sign the pledge of the N. R. C.—and would live up to that pledge—no one could fairly indulge in such criticism of the new sport and its devotees as that made by the chief roadman for the Automobile Club of America and quoted, in part, above.

How big is the National Recreation Club?

Already it has five hundred members.

How many camps does it maintain and where are they?

The N. R. C. has 70 camps, all of them in New England. Every camp is furnished with pure spring water, sanitary conveniences and refuse-pits or burners. If you live in New England, there are N. R. C. camps near enough to your home to provide you with a different camp for every week-end throughout the season.

What the Letters "N. R. C." Mean

And what are the advantages of these N. R. C. camps, over the "public" camp?

They are situated on large farms, where milk, eggs, butter and garden products may be obtained at the prevailing local rate.

They are spacious enough to prevent crowding.

They have been chosen for some natural advantage; elevation, magnificent view, mountain climbing, bathing or boating.

Most of the camps are just off the main road, away from the noise and the dust of the highway.

The founder of the National Recreation Club was John Wesley Barber, long time head of the J. W. Barber Advertising Agency and at the time of his death, in June last, the dean of advertising men in Boston.

Long retired from active business, Mr. Barber spent the closing years of his life doing good to others. Of the National Recreation Club and its purpose he said:

"There are hundreds upon hundreds of nice people who would like to go out on vacation and take the family along if it could be done at about the cost of staying at home. Let's provide the way, and show them how to do it most happily."

Mr. Barber was certain, he said, that the great majority of Americans are lovers of the birds, lovers of the woods, lovers of wild flowers.

"They are prefectly good citizens," he declared, "but thoughtless. Let's teach them to enjoy the beauties of nature in the right way, to the end that the next person traveling the same route may enjoy the same privileges."

No child in America old enough to be taken on a camping tour, Mr. Barber thought, was too young to be instructed in conservation. The N. R. C., he said, would instruct the youngsters so that in their zeal they would not pull wildflowers by the roots, ruthlessly break bushes, or hunt birds' nests and out of curiosity take away the eggs.

There are others who take to the open road without proper instruction and who look upon the hacking down of small trees as quite all right because there appears to be so many of them. From the dead wood they see all about them these innocents are in the habit of building fires which they are not always careful to extinguish. The N. R. C. would reach them, too. It IS reaching them.

When failing health compelled Mr. Barber's retirement from the good work after he had devoted four or five years to its preparation, he turned the organization over to Walter H. Woods of Brookline.

Mr. Woods has been a camper since he was eleven years old. It was he who selected every one of the 70 New England camps now on the N. R. C. list, and who visited all of them—and many others—before making these selections.

"At the close of last season," he says, "I had traveled 8,000 miles, to select 80 camps.

"The N. R. C. is a club, a co-operative movement, and, as in all other clubs, the applicant for membership is asked for references. These references, who should be two or more in number, may be well-known business men, public officials, other clubs or societies.

"The cost of an active membership is but $5 per annum. Some of our members would prefer to have it higher. The majority, however, believe we have placed it high enough to keep out the undesirable."

The new member of the N. R. C. is given a map of New England with the 70 camp sites plainly marked out on it. With the map he gets a loose-leaf sheet containing minute data about each site. Here, for example, is the loose-leaf story of the site at HENNIKER, N. H.

Owner, Will H. Bean.

P. O. and Exp. address—Henniker.

Size of lot, about 15 acres; pasture; hay field.

1 mile to Routes 9 and 32.

Approach—dirt road; fair.

R. R. station—1 mile; Henniker, on the B. & M.

Stores—1 mile.

Water for drinking—well; spring.

Bathing—stream.

Owner will sell milk, eggs, butter, fruit and vegetables; poultry dressed to order. Will let rooms.

From the square, take road that runs north about 300 feet to the east of Route 32; about 1-2 mile out of the village turn east on country road; at the bridge over the stream to the right will be seen the swimming hole; turn in at the first driveway to the left, which leads to the house.

On this property is an unoccupied house that can be used as a shelter. There is a good swimming hole in the stream near the camp.

With this map and his loose-leaf data the N. R. C. member also receives a book of twenty coupons. For one day at any N. R. C. camp he pays one coupon and 50 cents for each automobile as a unit, regardless of the number of its passengers.

The rate is the same for a camping party of five persons, without an automobile.

What the owner of the camp site gets is the cash fee.

"Our friends in the country," Mr. Woods says, "do not expect to get rich on us.

"I have found the rural New Englander not only ready but glad to share his heritage with persons whom he feels he can 'trust out of his sight.' Under our agreement he retains the right to reject prospective campers who, in his judgment, may appear to be undesirable.

"Our coupon-book serves the purpose of a hotel register, the coupons being returned to us for record.

"We disapprove of camp-fires. In this day of the gasoline stove we feel that the up-to-date camper has no use for a wood fire; except, perhaps, as a smudge."

The automobile is carrying up and down the highways of New England a great many people and a great many different sorts of people. Some of them have been careful of the rights of property owners. Too many of them have not. Because of conditions left behind by SOME campers, property owners have been compelled to turn away worthier folks who have followed them.

If the city man has worn out his welcome to the country, as unquestionably he has, in some instances and in some districts, it is because he has scattered litter all over the countryside and in some cases has been blamed for devastating fires.

"Our aim, in brief," Walter Woods says, "is to make the country safe for the farmer while at the same time keeping it open to the man from the city—and his family."

One of these days, and that just as soon as membership and finances warrant it, the National Recreation Club will have recreation and clubhouses everywhere; a large central building, where meals can be served; a clubhouse, with fireplace, piano, games and tables for writing. The members will live in tents or cabins.

It will not be denied that in some quarters the motor camper is not as popular as he might be. By the same token there are instances where the camper returns to town not quite so enthusiastic about our friends in the country and their hospitality as he was when he left home.

The N. R. C. desires to reconcile these differences, to bring motor-camper and farmer together in harmony. It is a task for 1924 Minute Men.

"So far as the hotels are concerned," Manager Wood says, "many of the best in New England are listed with us. It frequently happens that the camper desires a bath and a room for the night, or the comfort of a meal served at a hotel table. These hotels accept N. R. C. coupons in part payment of their charges."

The modest office of the National Recreation Club is at No. 755 Boylston Street, Boston, where inquiries will be welcomed.
